MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 3.—
The past three days under temporary shelter in the shattered city of Managua, today were rushed by airplane from the quake area to Corinto, on the sea coast.

Two hundred wives and children of United States marines were included in the flights from the Nicaraguan capital which had been leveled beneath them in Tuesday's earthquake and fire with the loss of 2,000 lives.

Marine and Pan-American airplanes were used to carry the homeward bound American refugees to Corinto, where they were awaited by the United States transport Chaumont which will go to San Francisco and the U. S. S. Relief which will proceed to New York.

Nearly all of the injured in Tuesday's quake have been removed to the city of Granada, only a few serious cases remaining here.

With the departure of the American women and children, the American marine forces again concentrated their attention on their work of relief and rescue work still remaining to be done.

Many of the children could not restrain their pleasurable excitement over the air trip to Corinto although there was still grimness in their faces from their harrowing experiences of the past few days.

Two of those who suffered losses in Tuesday's quake were among the first to go. These were Mrs. James F. Dickey, whose husband was killed, and Major Joseph E. Murray, of the United States marines, whose wife was killed.

The task of directing the feeding and rehabilitation of 40,000 homeless residents was taken over today by Ernest J. Swift, Red Cross official, after his arrival by airplane from Miami.

Meanwhile other naval relief groups congregated at Corinto, to which city a number of wives and children of United States marines were taken by airplane today. From there they will be returned to their homes in the United States.

The iron hand of martial law to prevent looting in the destroyed city resulted last night in the shooting of four plunderers by the national guard.
This is unofficially reported to have made a total to date of approximately twenty looters shot, although marine officials have not confirmed this.

One of the commodities of food most needed is milk for the babies. Although marines had a large store of condensed milk on hand, it was insufficient for the wants of thousands.

The excitement caused by yesterday's report that brigands were advancing on the city from the hill country subsided today. However, excused in today's action of placing a

RASKOB PLEDGES HIS FULL SUPPORT TO 1932 NOMINEE

Chairman Wires Alabama Editor He Is for Democratic Party
Whether Wet or Dry.

CENTREVILLE, Md., April 3.— (AP)—John J. Raskob, chairman of the democratic national committee, today assured southern democrats favoring prohibition of his support of the party's nominees in 1932 regardless of the stand taken on prohibition in the democratic platform.

Mr. Raskob, before leaving New York this afternoon for a week end at his home, replied to a telegram received from the Prattville (Ala.)
Progress. The telegram follows:
"Will you support the next democratic national nominees if they are for prohibition and the national platform is for prohibition? Thousands of loyal prohibition democrats wish to know this."

Mr. Raskob answered:
"Certainly I will support our nominees, but I strongly feel we should all insist that our platform clearly and honestly defines party position on prohibition and resist any dodging of the issue through silence or through adopting any innocuous plank such as law enforcement."

"The people whose suffrage we are soliciting should not be deceived and are entitled to know the party position. Of course, as you know, I strongly urge and advocate that our national platform support the view but after 12 years of practical experience with the greatest social experience under taken by the civilized world this question should be decided not by representatives, but by the people themselves and the simplest manner of giving the people this opportunity is for congress to vote favorably on a resolution proposing a constitutional amendment to be submitted to the respective states for approval or rejection not by the legislatures but by the people themselves in each respective state in constitutional conventions especially called for that purpose."

"The home rule plan fully respects this honest conviction of both the wet and dry elements in our party and I am sure it should receive most full, thorough and conscientious consideration by all."

'COLOSSAL FRAUD' LAID TO CALDWELL

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 3.—(AP)
A state grand jury here today indicated Rogers Caldwell, Nashville, and James B. Brown, Louisville, once financial leaders in their respective states, and branded their deal for merger of the Bank of Kentucky Company, Louisville, and Caldwell's Nashville investment banking house, a "colossal fraud" and a contributing cause in last fall's bank crashes.

The grand jury stated it was unfortunate that the directors of Banco authorized the deal "without knowing more about the true condition of Caldwell & Company, instead of depending upon what their president said Caldwell said." It added, however, there was no evidence of criminality in the deal except on the part of Caldwell.
Caldwell, already under a series of indictments in his own state, was accused of fraud.

Alabama's Amazing Suicide Pursues Path of Fiction

BY WILLIAM O. KEY JR.
Cosmopolites along the French Riviera who are finding in the tragic death last Sunday of the American beauty, Mrs. Mary Margaret Townsend, of Birmingham, Ala., a bewildering mystery seemingly inexplicable, may discover in two novels written by British women, one of which was published in 1929 and the other this spring, both reason and fiction precedent for the former Broadway showgirl's suicide.

Why a woman with youth, beauty, wealth and family should abruptly decide to drive her high-powered automobile from the highest precipice along the Riviera, leaving a brief, un-explaining note to a rich husband to whom she reputedly was devoted, and a young daughter, is the puzzle which holds the attention of the visitors and columnists along the famous Cote d'Azur.

Yet, in "Sleeveless Errand," by No-rah C. James, published in America two years ago by William Morrow & Company, and in "But Not For Love," published this spring by Alfred A.
Knopf, there may be a dramatic vin-dication of Oscar Wilde's dictum that nature imitates art.

In "Sleeveless Errand" not only is it explained why such tragic decisions suddenly are arrived at, but the book's leading character is portrayed as a young woman of beauty and means;
and the manner in which

CALLAWAY NAMED IN NEW TRUE BILL

One of the five counts charging that P. O. Hebert, representative of a fire engine company, gave him
$300 he "lost" at what Solicitor General John A. Boykin termed "one of those municipal parties" at the Robert Fulton hotel, Deputy Sheriff
T. Frank Callaway, a former tenth ward councilman, was reintroduced Friday by the Fulton grand jury and his trial set for Thursday before Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy in Fulton superior court.

Callaway already was accused in a one-count indictment, that count being contained in the new bill. The new charges involve transactions with Hebert, agent for the American La France Company and the Eureka Fire Hose Company, on whose testimony a jury Thursday night convicted former Alderman W. Guy Dobbs of bribery.

The count involving the lost $300 is the fourth. The bill merely charges that on December 1, 1924, Hebert paid to Callaway $300, his month's pay, which he had lost "as a bribe to influence his official conduct in matters then and there pending before council."

Verdict Viewed As Compromise Among Jurors

Sensations Surrounding Murder Last Year of Chicago Reporter Climaxed by Decision Following 27-Hour Debate.

LIGHTEST TERM POSSIBLE TO GIVE

Rumor Had Said Vote
Was 10 to 2 for Acquittal Short Time Before Verdict Was Returned.

CHICAGO, April 3.—(AP)—Leo V.
Brothers, of St. Louis, was convicted today of assassinating Alfred (Jake) Lingle and the jury fixed his punishment at 14 years in prison.

After 27 hours of stormy debate, the sleepless 12 men came in to give Brothers, young St. Louis hoodlum, the lightest penalty under Illinois law for murder.

In this manner, half of the question: "Who killed Jake Lingle—and why?" was answered to calm, for the time being, months of widespread conjecture since the Chicago Tribune gangland reporter was assassinated.

A motion for a new trial was made at once by attorneys for the defense, who called the verdict a compromise.
They will argue the point April 17 against a prosecution "satisfied that the verdict was just."

The end came with dramatic suddenness. Since 2:24 p. m. Thursday, the jury had been locked up. There had been no definite word of what was going on inside.

Judge Joseph Sabath, beginning to despair of a verdict, had decided to call in the jurors and see what prospects were.

Suddenly, at 5:20 p. m., the sounds of argument ceased, the jury sent out word it had come to an agreement, the lawyers were summoned, Brothers brought in and the verdict read.

"We, the jury, find the defendant, Leo V. Brothers, otherwise known as Leo V. Bader, otherwise known as Buster, guilty of the murder of Alfred J. Lingle, and we fix his punishment at 14 years' imprisonment," intoned the clerk.

There were a few gasps in the courtroom. Brothers, leaning on the witness stand, paled a trifle and then said to a bailiff: "Let's duck." The first big gang murder case to reach a Chicago jury was over.

The killing of Lingle, as he strolled through the pedestrian tunnel under

SHERIFF'S SLAYER CAUGHT BY POSSE AND BROUGHT HERE

Negro Youth, Wounded,
Is Placed in Fulton
Tower; Thomas Camp
Dies on Way to Hospital

Cornered in an open field after an all-day pursuit by large posses and bloodhounds, Fred Griffin, 18-year-old negro, of Logansville, late Friday afternoon was arrested for the murder
Friday morning of Sheriff Thomas W. Camp, of Campbell county, who was slain near the courthouse at Fair-burn with his own gun.

Sheriff Camp's pistol, a pearl-handled six-inch barrel, 28 calibre Smith and Wesson, was found in the negro's possession, and Griffin was identified positively by Lester Heineman, of Fairburn, an eye-witness of the slay-ing, as the man who shot Sheriff
Camp during a scuffle over possession of the gun, according to G. C. Bentley, police chief of Campbell county.

Suffering from hundreds of small wounds made by bird shot fired at him during a brief last stand in the open field, half a mile east of Red Oak, Griffin was rushed to Grady hospital by Fulton county officers, and after receiving treatment was placed in Fulton tower for safekeeping. The mile-a-minute race to Atlanta was made with County Patrolman Cal
Cates at the wheel and with Captain J. C. Oliver, Lieutenant R. F. Jordan and Deputies Sheriff W. H. Mayo and J. W. Jordan guarding the prisoner.

Certain Slayer Is Held.
Chief Bentley said that he is absolutely certain that the slayer of Sheriff Camp is in custody. Questioned at the hospital, Griffin denied shooting Sheriff Camp, and explained possession of the gun by saying that he met another negro in a cane field and swapped him a new pair of tan slacks for the gun.

Deputy Sheriff Mayo said that newly plowed ground aided in the search for the slayer during the times when the bloodhounds lost the trail. The negro was barefooted. He was sighted as he broke from the cover of a swamp and started across an open field with the posse on his heels, Mayo said. Deputies Sheriff Mayo and Jordan were the first officers to reach the negro after citizen members of the posse grabbed him.

Officers from Campbell, Fulton,
DeKalb, Cobb, Coweta, Clayton, Gwinnett and Fayette counties joined in the all-day search, aided by armed citizens who carried arms ranging from small pistols to heavy shotguns and rifles.

Physicians at Grady hospital said

AT THE CHILDREN'S TABLE

BY MARY HOPE NORRIS,
Founder, Mothers' Radio Round Table.

Correct Foods for the Pre-School Child

The runabout or pre-school age—from 2 to 6 years—is easily one of the most important periods in the child's whole life. In the first place, his body is growing and developing and the health of a lifetime is linked with the early foods given to him. Again, habits and tastes in eating also are established at this time.

The rules governing the selection of food for the runabout child are much the same as those that direct the choice of food for adults, except that the child must have an abundance of simple food abounding in lime and phosphorus. These elements are needed to meet the body's demands for the production of bones and teeth.

Translated into terms of food, a wholesome diet for the pre-school child calls for vegetables and fruits, which give mineral substance, vitamins and bulk. Milk, eggs, cheese and meats, which give protein or energy and growth food, vitamins and lime and phosphorus. Cereals, which furnish starch, protein and vitamins. Fats, such as rich milk, butter, oils, crisp bacon, etc., which are needed to provide fuel and vitamins.

In planning a day's meals for the pre-school child, always put down a quart of milk (which can be used in cooking in milk soups, custards, etc., as well as a beverage); orange juice and cod liver oil are also necessities. The daily schedule should run something like this:

Breakfast: Fruit (preferably citrus), cereal, toast, crisp bacon, scrambled or poached egg several times

W. S. RICHARDSON
TO ADDRESS VOTERS
City and county officials have been invited to attend the regular meeting of the city council of the Atlanta League of Women Voters at the Piedmont hotel for luncheon at 12:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

W. S. Richardson, tax collector, is to discuss the proposed registration bill, which is in the process of being formulated. The plan of the men's council is to secure a modern, efficient registration system based upon the experience of states which have the most successful laws.

The city and county officials invited to be present at the Monday luncheon are: James L. Key, Scott Candler, James L. Mayson, J. H. Tatum, W. M. Rogers, Charles Shelton, J. C. H. Rison, the Fulton and DeKalb county board of registrars, Senator John Wesley Weeks, Senator Ed L. Reagan, George A. Eckford, William G. McRae, Luther Still, Roy C. Leathers, Paul Lindsay, Henry A. Beaman, J. P. Wall and W. J. Laney and John M. Owen.

Salt, sprinkled in the pan before putting in the fat, will prevent splashing when frying meat. Salt in the oven under baking tins will prevent their scorching on the bottom. A pudding will cool more quickly if its container is placed in a dish of cold water to which a quantity of salt has been added.

Butter may be kept hard without setting the dish in which it is contained in cold salt water. To prevent a fish from slipping through the fingers while cleaning it, dip the fingers in salt. Meats will come out whole from nuts which have been soaked in salt water overnight before cracking. And eggs may be kept a long time by packing them in salt.

FOODS THAT ARE FRIENDLY TO BEAUTY

BY KATHLEEN MARY QUINN.

Years ago, when I first began my work as a specialist, beauty was looked upon as a gift of the gods, and the wise cook was a legend; plainness was granted equally for granted. There was no thought to be impossible to improve upon nature.

Beauty was coveted then just as ardently as now, but it was coveted in secret. To look long and often in the mirror was considered a sign of pure vanity; to use makeup was sinful; rouge was an index to perdition, and if one was not a virgin, she was too bad—but the way nature made one.

Today we realize that like great art and great stonemasonry beauty does not depend upon the perfect, but is developed slowly, and often laboriously. We are plastic clay for our own molding, and just as the sculptor draws from the stone, so we can draw an idealized and glamorous self from the imperfect one.

How much of our success in this direction depends upon the food we eat I should not care to say, so important is this element in the quest for beauty. But one thing is certain: the average person eats far too much and gives far too little thought to the question of balance in the daily rations.

Yet if you were to ask me to set forth a system of dieting that would lead to beauty of form and a flawless complexion, I should be very lenient indeed with you.

Orange juice is, of course, well known as an aid to clear complexion. For breakfast then you might have a full glass of orange juice and a slice of whole wheat toast with coffee mellowed with a teaspoon of butter instead of the usual cream. This cold digestor gives the coffee a most delicious flavor, and is particularly good for those who find that the addition of cream causes indigestion.

For luncheon there could be a salad of oranges, tomatoes or mixed fresh fruits or vegetables; whole wheat bread, baked apple, and a slice of cream or perhaps a bit of cream cheese with jelly.

Dinner would be more substantial, perhaps starting with a delicious tomato cocktail or a nice soup of vegetables, followed by a chop or chicken, lamb or baked fish, and some green vegetables. If one is not overweight, it would be all right to include a baked potato, and there could also be a little cold salad instead of salad, with a light dressing and coffee, if desired.

I am so often asked whether coffee is a detriment to beauty. Quite to the contrary. Often it is an aid to digestion. For this cold digestor gives the coffee a most delicious flavor, and is particularly good for those who find that the addition of cream causes indigestion.

An outline of the community restaurant program of the soviet union has been announced here by the soviet union information bureau.

"The problem of replacing the individual kitchen by co-operative restaurants and by large factory kitchens serving meals on the spot," the bureau announcement says, "as well as sending out semi and fully-prepared meals to other restaurants and families, is an important part of the five-year plan."

In October, 1929, the report continues, the soviet community kitchens were serving a modest 2,200,000 hot meals daily.

In a year the number increased to 11,700,000 meals a day, and on January 1, 1931, the report says, 37,000,000 meals were prepared under the community program.

So far the United States outstrips the soviet union in restaurant eating, but the communist authorities promise it will not be for long. The American Restaurant Magazine, organ of the men who serve the pies that mother used to make, estimates that 9,412,620,000 restaurant meals are eaten annually in the United States. The daily average is about 25,788,000 meals.

These meals come from 76,652 restaurants and 12,500 hotels. The soviet union has accepted that challenge and plans to reach a daily average of 37,000,000 hot meals during 1931.

The Russian meal is vastly cheaper than the American. The Restaurant Magazine estimated the average price of the American meal at 50 cents, while the Russian gets a hot, two-course dinner for about 15 cents.

W. S. RICHARDSON
TO ADDRESS VOTERS
City and county officials have been invited to attend the regular meeting of the city council of the Atlanta League of Women Voters at the Piedmont hotel for luncheon at 12:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

W. S. Richardson, tax collector, is to discuss the proposed registration bill, which is in the process of being formulated. The plan of the men's council is to secure a modern, efficient registration system based upon the experience of states which have the most successful laws.

The city and county officials invited to be present at the Monday luncheon are: James L. Key, Scott Candler, James L. Mayson, J. H. Tatum, W. M. Rogers, Charles Shelton, J. C. H. Rison, the Fulton and DeKalb county board of registrars, Senator John Wesley Weeks, Senator Ed L. Reagan, George A. Eckford, William G. McRae, Luther Still, Roy C. Leathers, Paul Lindsay, Henry A. Beaman, J. P. Wall and W. J. Laney and John M. Owen.

Salt, sprinkled in the pan before putting in the fat, will prevent splashing when frying meat. Salt in the oven under baking tins will prevent their scorching on the bottom. A pudding will cool more quickly if its container is placed in a dish of cold water to which a quantity of salt has been added.

Butter may be kept hard without setting the dish in which it is contained in cold salt water. To prevent a fish from slipping through the fingers while cleaning it, dip the fingers in salt. Meats will come out whole from nuts which have been soaked in salt water overnight before cracking. And eggs may be kept a long time by packing them in salt.

THE CHEF SUGGESTS

BY J. BOGGIA,
Chef, The Hotel Plaza, New York.

In the commissary department of the great hotel or the small one, the magnificent or the simple home—it matters not—the wise cook is always seeking variations that add piquancy to the menu without involving a great amount of extra work. And when there is discovered some little culinary trick that pleases the fancy, yet takes but a moment to execute, then comes rejoicing in the kitchen.

It is always so when I determine to serve a special dessert of which I must hasten to tell you before the snows are over, it is so appropriate for winter occasions.

Nothing is more usual than a ball of vanilla ice cream, and that is the foundation of the recipe. But wait a moment. We need a variety of cream into globes about the size of a baseball, introducing into the heart of each a delicious assortment of candied fruits and dainties, then just before serving we roll each ball in finely shredded coconut that makes it look like a fluffy snowball. . . .

Results are a lot more interesting in eating, and eager to find new ways in which to serve familiar foods.

LEFT-OVERS IN DISGUISE

BY WILDA HOYT.

Now that we have come to understand somewhat the mysterious workings of psychology, we have turned that term inside out and are having great fun making it perform as servant instead of master.

What modern housewife, for example, calls a leftover, is a Christian name? It is now invariably presented as "a delicious new entrée," a madeleine of vegetables, this-and-that en casserole, or some equally high-sounding name that makes us lick our chops and pronounce it the most tempting concoction we've tasted for a long time.

Leftovers in disguise are fairly good mothers to the budget—and, as chefs will tell you, when prepared with extra care for the seasoning they are often better than when first served. There is a trick in the preparation of leftover dishes, however, and not everyone knows it. When vegetables are kept overnight it is only natural that they should seem slightly flat and lacking in flavor when merely reheated the next day. But how many of us know how to restore the original flavor?

The continental chef does it merely by adding a little more of the three usual seasonings—salt, pepper, and sugar—which furnish all the added flavor needed unless one wishes to embellish the dish for the sake of variety. Salt and pepper, of course, go without saying. The dash of sugar is the extra touch which blends the different flavors and restores their natural sweetness.

Now let us see how the system works in this game of leftovers in disguise. One chef offers the following dish which he makes on occasions when too much shredded cabbage has been prepared for salad—yet not enough remains for a vegetable side alone.

Flemish Cabbage.
To about a half head of cabbage, shredded, add a half of one small Spanish onion and one medium-sized apple, both shredded. Season with pepper and salt; add small dash of sugar and cook gently until tender. Ten minutes before serving place the mixture in a frying pan with a large spoon of butter and two teaspoons of lemon juice or vinegar. Cook slowly until well blended. This is what is known as Flemish cabbage—and it is delicious beyond words.

Goldfish thrive if a teaspoonful of salt is added to their water once a week. Deep glass vases which have become foul at the bottom can be cleaned by allowing a solution of salt and vinegar to stand in them for a time. Egg stains on silver can be removed by rubbing them with salt and then washing in warm water with a little soap. Matting should always be swept with a broom dipped in strong salt water to make it wear longer and keep it from turning yellow.

Sprinkle salt on parsley to make it chop easier and finer. If a boiling egg is cracked, a pinch of salt added quickly to the water may prevent the egg from boiling out. Adding a tiny pinch of salt to fresh milk will make it keep much longer.

LITTLE LABOR SAVERS

In Lieu of Linen.

Among the modern novelties that may be considered in the labor-saving group are many very attractive substitutes for table linen that require regular laundering. For bridge, for meals in the kitchenette or informal dining alcove, at tea time and for the children's lunch we now see the daintiest of tissue napkins tinted to harmonize with the glassware or china, and so soft in texture that they may well look twice before discovering what it is they're made of. Even homes are no longer neglected in the new tissue napkins, but make their appearance in prim hemstitched lines a half inch from the margin—as correct as any regulation napkin in the linen chest.

Whatever the color of the glassware or the design of the china, there is a tissue tone for either or both—a soft pastel shade that will act as complement or contrast or harmony. Maize, jade, pale turquoise, orchid, flesh and white are available in assorted colors or separately, so that one may affect a favorite scheme or enjoy a daily change in color, the white saving laundry and lessening the wear and tear on costly linens.

When Squeezing Oranges.
One woman who has the knack of eliminating waste motion finds that it saves considerable time and energy to "juice" sufficient oranges at one time to provide the morning cocktail for several days. This she does in the afternoon or evening, instead of going through the squeezing performance each morning while the breakfast rush is on; then puts the contents in a screw top fruit jar and sets it away in the ice chest to be used when needed.

Ready Sliced Bread.
You've no idea how much time it takes to buy bread sliced and ready to serve instead of in the usual loaf. This scheme—once considered chiefly as a convenience for the picnic lunch—is now becoming a household habit in many sections. At the last moment, when hot foods are clamoring to be set upon the table and served without delay, it saves both confusion and loss of time to find at hand a whole loaf of bread cut in uniform slices of just the right thickness.

A Shopping Hint.
Unless for "company" reasons, do not wait for high days and holidays to indulge in such delicacies as mushrooms, chicken and duck, sweetbreads, truffles and vegetables. Serve them during the week. Luxury foods taste just as good Monday-to-Friday as they do on Saturday and Sunday.

THE COCKTAIL COLUMN
All members of the cocktail family are eligible to this group, which will entertain the appetizers and beverages with such friends of each as are known to be congenial.

Today the guest of honor is a lavishing cocktail with a sparkling, tingling sense of humor that all find delightful, though somewhat baffling on first acquaintance. It is known as Jack and Jin.

To each glassful of strained orange juice add a glass of good apple cider and one of ginger ale. Mix well and pour over ice cubes in tall glasses. Top with a sprig of mint and a sprinkle of grated orange rind.

A crisp cheese wafers are delicious with this drink; or if you prefer a sweet bite, try paper-thin cinnamon snaps.

CHATS WITH A POPULAR HOSTESS

MRS. OLIVER HARRIMAN,
Chairman, Exposition of Women's Arts and Industries.

Wherever we go, we must start from home. . . . and I think that our little homes are often more beautiful today, in the

a part in the age, than they were in the frame house era. But the great houses of the past seem to me to have had a graciousness that one finds less often nowadays.

Of course the obvious answer is that we were more leisurely in bygone times and we had more space. You probably do not even remember the time when a road was a place to loiter instead of stepping on the gas. . . . and a home a place in which to stay, instead of using it as mere sleeping quarters and starting point next day. But I remember it.

Today society people are "out" much more than they used to be. Now, when one calls, one is apt to find the hostess in only for a few specified hours on at home days. And this seems to me a great pity. We are less formal and more mechanized—both social losses.

To my mind the great house, and as a matter of fact, that whole group which we call society, is simply lost without formality, and no amount of mechanical devices seems to me to make up for that loss. Today the formality of the older period is criticized as a bit stiff and unpleasant for modern manners. But as I recall it, we were light-hearted and carefree in spite of our good manners.

It seems to me that there was a bloom, a magic about our parties that we don't have now. But do not mistake me. I love the present and find myself quite at home in it. I deplore Americans who are forever seeking to revive the past, or finding compensation in a futile cosmopolitanism.

Just take the question of what where and how we eat. Our formal luncheons used to be much too solemn. I love luncheons and the planning of them. A well-appointed table in the sunshine, with conversation sparkling as brightly as the crystal and silver, things.

There is charm in the vitality and the frankness of social life today. . . . but those qualities actually banish "society." Formality is really its heart. And while some may find this artificial, I realize it is as gracious and charming. "I think I like the complex and subtle—not frankness, perhaps, as the modern girl understands candor." . . . The girl or woman of most wisdom uses spontaneity as a note rather than a theme.

But please do not take me too seriously because, I confess, I have an emotional bias in the past. Rather in these talks let us see what you and I can find together as a compromise between the old and the new. It should be interesting to see how many fine points of hospitality and service hold good from the old days and fit into the present scheme of things.

Just take the question of what where and how we eat. Our formal luncheons used to be much too solemn. I love luncheons and the planning of them. A well-appointed table in the sunshine, with conversation sparkling as brightly as the crystal and silver, things.

Hastens General Reviv

BY THOMAS L. STORES.
WASHINGTON, April 3.—(U. S. A.) Purchase of automobiles by ex-soldiers with their bonus loans has contributed to a very noticeable pick-up in the automotive industry recently, which some experts interpret as the first signs of general business improvement.

Reports here from various parts of the country indicate that many veterans have used their bonus loans to buy automobiles, either new or second-hand. A greater proportion of the money being paid out to veterans by the Federal Government, through which Administrator Hines, of the Veterans' bureau, figured would reach a billion dollars eventually, is going for the purchase of automobiles than for any other one article on the market, it is believed.

Automobile sales for March were expected to show a very decided increase. While official figures have not yet been tabulated, this increase is likely to be as high as 20 per cent above sales for last March, perhaps more. The trade generally is very optimistic.

The government, up to March, had paid out $278,081,530 to war veterans, and applications still are coming in. Just what part of this has gone into automobiles has not been ascertained, but the boost in automobile sales is attributed in part to this.

The extent of this influence will be made known soon in a survey recently conducted. Just how widespread has been the purchase of automobiles by veterans is shown in

"Our members report that the soldier loan payments have stimulated business to a marked degree," D. Murphy, manager of the Washington Automotive Trade Association, said today.

Power Commission Assumes Contested Control of River

Five States Voice Objections as New Group Takes Jurisdiction of New River in Virginia.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP)—In its first major decision, the reorganized power commission today assumed jurisdiction over a stream whose navigability status was challenged, and in the face of protests from five states.

The commission rejected the application of the Appalachian Electric Power Company for a modified or "minor" license to build an $11,000,000 plant on the New River in Virginia and offered the company a standard or "major" license.

Meanwhile the company was ordered not to proceed with construction until it had accepted the major license, which permits recapture of the plant by the government and provides for a strict accounting report on investment costs and full federal regulation.

Virginia, West Virginia, Arkansas, Kentucky and Tennessee opposed assumption of jurisdiction by the federal agency, on the ground the power commission would encroach upon state rights. They joined with the company in contending the river was non-navigable, and as such, outside governmental jurisdiction.

The commission in effect disregarded the plea of non-navigability in its findings and ruled that the project affected interstate commerce and was subject to federal regulation. The New River is the principal tributary of the Kanawha river, which empties in the Ohio, both of which are navigable.

The commission's decision is expected to wind up in the courts, as it was believed the company would appeal, possibly asking for a full legal determination of the limits of the commission's authority.

Two of the commissioners, McNinch and Drener, sought to have the group assert the New River was navigable, reversing the findings of the old commission.

They were voted down, however, by the other three commissioners who held there was so much conflicting evidence that the courts alone should determine whether New River came within the legal definition of "navigable waters."

Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, and the National Popular Government League had asked that the commission find the river a navigable one and assert jurisdiction.

The league contended that through the Appalachian Company, the Electric Bond and Share Company, one of the principal utility holding concerns, was seeking to establish a precedent by which a great number of power developments would be taken out of government jurisdiction.

The commissioners upheld the first New River decision by the previous power commission composed of three cabinet members, refused a motion for reconsideration of those findings, refused application for minor part license and disregarded an opinion of Attorney-General Mitchell in which the old commission was advised it had full authority to waive major license requirements.

A minor part license would require only regulation of stream flow to maintain navigation in the Kanawha and would not give the government power to recapture the power plant nor would it submit the financial structure of the company to government scrutiny.

COURT CONTEST SLATED TO BEGIN NEXT WEEK

The senate's unprecedented court contest with President Hoover to remove Chairman Smith of the power commission probably will get under way next week.

Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, leader of the movement to oust Smith, announced today he would confer with counsel in the case next Friday and that the suit would be filed shortly thereafter.

Senate counsel are John W. Davis, of New York, democratic candidate for president in 1924, and former Governor Alexander J. Grovesbeck, of Michigan.

Former Senator Pepper, of Pennsylvania, will represent Smith and the justice department has served notice its attorneys will defend his case vigorously.

The prominence of the counsel was expected to result in a brilliant court contest over the unique constitutional question involved—whether the senate can reconsider a nomination after the appointee has taken office.

The senate suit will be filed in the

BEAM GIVEN NEW POST BY SOUTHERN RAILWAY

After 46 years in the service of the passenger traffic department of the Southern Railway System, 23 of them spent in Atlanta, five as district passenger agent and 18 as assistant general passenger agent, in charge of Georgia, Florida and other southeastern territory, Jerome C. Beam will be relieved of the duties of the last named office on April 15 and become special passenger representative at Atlanta. The change was made at his own request, according to announcement by Vice President E. K. Oliver, of Washington, D. C., in charge of traffic.

On the same date Virgil L. Estes, now division passenger agent at Jacksonville, Fla., will be promoted to general passenger agent in charge of the Florida territory, and E. E. Barry, now district passenger agent here, will be promoted to assistant general passenger agent at Atlanta.

Both Mr. Estes and Mr. Barry are well known in Atlanta. Mr. Estes was connected with the office of the assistant general passenger agent here from 1906 until March 1, 1920, when he was made district passenger agent at Atlanta. He was promoted to division passenger agent at Jacksonville in May, 1924.

Mr. Barry is a native of Atlanta and grew up in the local passenger offices of the Southern. After promotions through various grades in the office he was sent to Houston, Texas, as district passenger agent, and on August 15, 1925, he was transferred to Atlanta with the same title.

In his new position Mr. Beam will be relieved of detail duties and will devote his entire time to solicitation of passenger traffic, particularly large movements.

The new congregation will be known as the Little Five Points Baptist Mission, the announcement said, and services will be conducted every Sunday, morning and evening, with Bible school and young people's training classes, and prayer services will be held on Wednesday nights.

Meetings of the congregation will be held temporarily at the Joseph C. Greenfield Lodge, No. 400, F. & A. M. temple on Moreland avenue. The first services will take place Easter Sunday and those in charge of the mission are exerting every effort to have a large attendance.

K. OF C. WILL HEAR COL. M. J. O'LEARY

An address by Colonel M. J. O'Leary, of Savannah, special agent of the supreme council, Knights of Columbus, will feature the regular meeting of the local council at 8 o'clock Monday night. Colonel O'Leary arrived in Atlanta Thursday for a visit of inspection of the Atlanta Council No. 690.

In his talk, the visiting official is expected to outline the Knights of Columbus' principal activities, chief among which at the present time is that of development of boys' work. The order sponsors the only graduate boy guidance course in the world at Notre Dame University. Colonel O'Leary also is expected to touch upon the peacetime program of promotion of lay apostolic work.

Following his visit to Atlanta, Colonel O'Leary will visit Macon, on his tour of inspection of various councils of the order in Georgia.

ATLANTA-NASHVILLE BANKERS TO DEBATE

"Resolved: That the United States Should Recognize the Soviet Government of Russia" is the subject of a debate to be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Federal Reserve bank. The opposing teams will represent the Nashville and Atlanta chapters of the American Institute of Banking. The affirmative will be upheld by the Nashville team, composed of W. J. Stephens, John Orr and Fitzgerald Parker.

Wade G. Murrain, of the First National bank, will be the leader of the local team, the other two members being Frank T. Davis, also of the First National, and A. H. Duggan, of the Citizens and Southern National bank.

Following the debate a dance will be given in honor of the visiting team in the clubrooms of the Federal Reserve bank.

Staid Law Students at Emory University Abandon Blackstone for Annual Egg Hunt

The freshmen at Emory University Law School sponsored the traditional egg hunt, and among the participants were (left to right) Elizabeth Spurlock, Dean C. J. Hilkey, Henry Quillian, (standing) Professor Paul E. Bryan, and Hoytt Dobbs, as Peter Rabbit. Staff photo by Sanders.

The study of law is essentially a dignified proceeding, and the students thereof find little time for the lighter diversions. That probably explains why, when the traditional Easter egg hunt is set in motion at Emory law school, dignity is discarded for levity, and decorum is superseded by frivolity.

At the start of the occasion, Alfred

Rusty made the opening speech for the freshmen, who gave the party, and introduced Peter Rabbit, better known as Hoytt Dobbs. Professor Paul E. Bryan replied with an address, and the hunt was under way. Before long a large nest was discovered which, upon investigation, was found to contain a huge egg for Dean C. J. Hilkey.

four smaller eggs for the participating members of the faculty, and a small candy rabbit for Janitor Alfonso. More than 200 eggs were hidden and prizes were awarded for the sleuth who brought back the most, the largest and the least. Neal Berry with 35 qualified for the quantity prize. Sidney Rose, who succeeded in maintaining a perfect percentage by not finding a single egg, obtained the booby prize. William Leonard found the biggest egg, which was its own prize, as it contained $2. As soon as Leonard discovered the sudden wealth therein, he followed the old maxim of "easy come, easy go" and treated the whole crowd to the drinks at the neighborhood drug store. Almost the entire enrollment at the law school took part in the festivities and expressed themselves as thoroughly pleased with the party.

LAST DAY of Oriental Rugs

Auction TODAY

At 2:30 and 7:30 P. M.

Today is positively the last day of the auction. There are many more choice rugs which will be closed out today.

We have definitely decided to discontinue business and liquidate immediately. In order to do this in the shortest possible time, we find it advisable to offer our entire stock of Oriental Rugs at auction to the highest bidder without reserve or limit in any quantities to suit all buyers.

This is a bona fide affair and the opportunity is a rare one. There will be no rugs reserved; absolutely every rug will be put up and sold.

This undoubtedly is one of America's most complete stocks. It consists of Oriental Rugs of all types from a tiny mat to real large palatial room sizes.

Shell pioneers great step forward in motor fuels

Perfects new fuel amazingly high in the anti-knock value modern engines need... AT REGULAR GASOLINE PRICE

SHELL has succeeded — after months of effort! in anti-knock value as the New Improved Shell 400.

Today Shell offers a new fuel high in the precious quality that all cars need—the quality most ordinary gasoline lacks.

Study this chart. Note that most of the ordinary gasoline on the market falls below the needs of the great majority of all cars. But note that New Improved Shell 400 is far higher in anti-knock value than the ordinary fuel.

Best of all, it costs you no more than the ordinary kind!

Now you can be safe once and for all against motor ills and damage caused by gasoline that knocks. Shell acts to give you the kind of gasoline your car ought to have—at the lowest possible price. In the interest of low cost driving, Shell pioneers this great step forward in motor fuels.

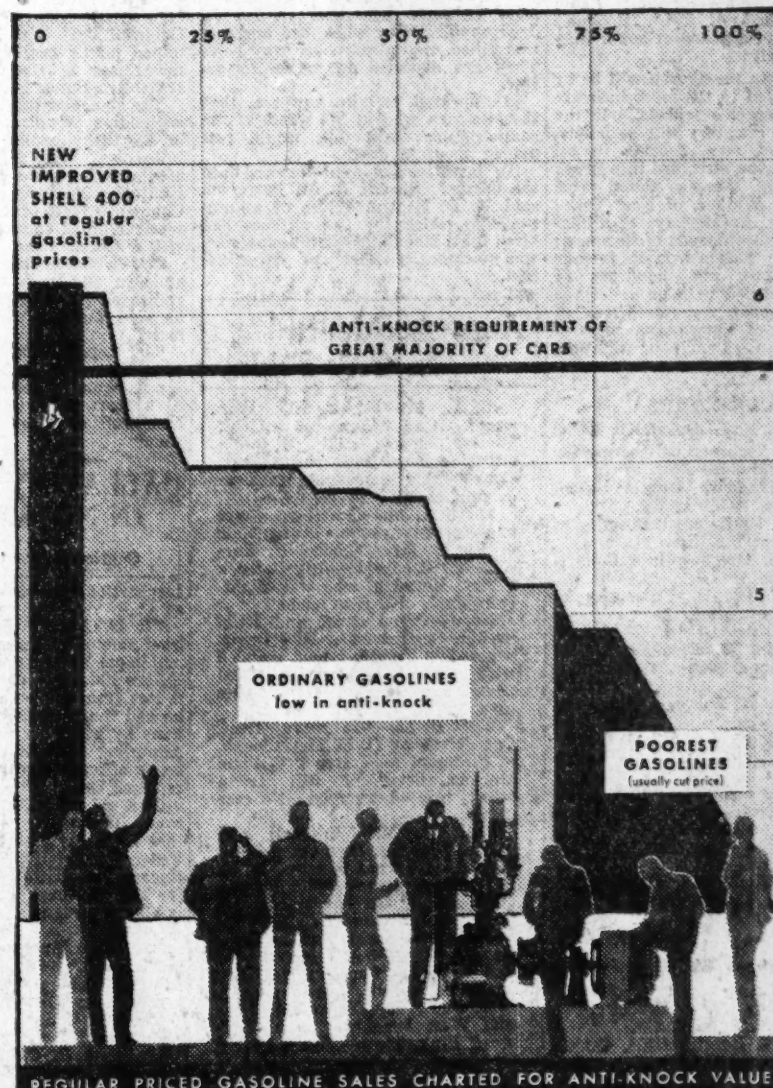

Most cars on the road today require a fuel at least as high in anti-knock value as the New Improved Shell 400.

If yours is one of these cars, you can use New Improved Shell 400 and forget about motor damage from doubtful or incorrect gasoline. You can have the power, get-away and smoothness your engine was built to give. And make the only kind of gasoline economy that is worth while—the saving of regular priced fuel really fit to run your motor.

You may be getting the kind of gasoline your engine should have. But millions, as this chart will prove, are putting up with poor motor operation, getting less power and facing higher repair bills than they should—due to incorrect gasoline.

Make a test of New Improved Shell 400. Try one complete filling of it—at least 10 gallons. Ask Shell station men about the nation wide mileage test. Enter it, today.

See on this chart how most ordinary gasoline falls below the needs of many cars. See the false economy of cut price gasolines—inferior, if not actually dangerous to your motor. Notice that New Improved Shell 400 has the indispensable quality all cars need—high anti-knock value.

NEW IMPROVED SHELL 400

Definitely better than many premium priced fuels, yet sold at regular gasoline prices. High in the quality all cars need—anti-knock value

COACH ALEXANDER AMONG PALLBEARERS

Coach W. A. Alexander, head coach at Georgia Tech, will be among the honorary pallbearers at the funeral of Knute Rockne this afternoon at South Bend, Ind. He left Thursday night to attend the funeral. With him was Jack Cannon, former player under the late Knute Rockne. Cannon is Alexander's assistant at Tech.

BY PAUL NICKELSON.
SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 3.—(AP) The same strong arms which carried Notre Dame to unequalled glory on the gridiron during the past two years will bear Knute Rockne on his last journey tomorrow.

In keeping with the wishes of the immortal football coach, six of the players, who helped to give the Ramblers two national championships, were chosen today as active pallbearers for the impressive but simple funeral services.

They were Tom Conley, captain of the 1930 team; Tommy Yarr, captain of the 1931 team, which faced the heartless task of carrying on without the great master; Frankie Carideo, the "Little Napoleon" of the Rockne era; and three other players, who were chosen today as active pallbearers for the impressive but simple funeral services.

Plans were completed today for the funeral. The cortege—a cavalcade of automobiles carrying Mrs. Rockne and family, Rockne's 24-year-old son, and his three sisters, officials of the university and other relatives and close friends—will leave the Rockne home at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow for the church of Sacred Heart on the campus of Notre Dame.

The eulogy will be by the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, C. S. C., president of the university. At 3:45 the body will be blessed and then taken to the Highland cemetery on the outskirts of the city.

The entire service is not expected to last more than three hours. Sacred Heart church, a gothic style of architecture, will be decorated inside and out with black and white, as will other buildings on the campus. The football stadium also will be in mourning, the entrance from the top being draped with black and white.

Twelve members of the Notre Dame graduating class of 1914, Rockne's class, will form a guard of honor during the funeral. Admission to the church will be by card and limited to the most intimate of the dead coach's friends, but the service at the cemetery will be public.

Hundreds of men, famous in all fields of endeavor, streamed into South Bend tonight. Among them were Mayor James Walker, of New York; Mayor Harry A. Mackay, of Philadelphia, both close friends of Rockne's; scores of the nation's most famous football coaches, and hundreds of "boys" who played with or under the master. Personal representatives of King Haakon of Norway, members of the Norwegian Council of Chicago, also will be in attendance.

MANY FAMOUS NAMES

BROTHERS-GUILTY OF SLAYING LINGLE

busy Michigan Boulevard last June 11, was one of the most spectacular of the city ever known, and it was a public clamor that still is heard in the drive against Chicago's "public enemies."

A single shot, fired into the back of the reporter's head, killed him instantly. The slayer and those who are believed to have accompanied him escaped in the confusion of the crowded subway.

The trial itself was unusual more for its omissions than for its revelations. The expected evidence of the inner workings of Chicago's "public enemies" did not materialize.

The state did not try to prove a motive or to prove that Brothers had any connection with the slaying of Lingle or any other city. Brothers did not take the stand and he did not attempt to prove an alibi.

The case consisted of eight witnesses for the state and seven for the defense who said they were in or near the tunnel when Lingle was killed. The state witnesses, one of whom said he saw the slayer drop the pistol, identified Brothers. The defense witnesses, two of whom said they saw the actual shooting, testified Brothers was not the man.

Judge Joseph Sabath instructed the jury that the state need not prove motive and that the defendant's not taking the stand should create no implication of guilt.

Brothers, 32 years old, charged that the case was a "frame-up" and his attorneys implied that a sinister influence was back of the prosecution.

C. Wayland Brooks, assistant state's attorney, had qualified the jury for the death penalty but he did not refer to it directly in his closing argument. "This cowardly, vicious murder," he said, "deserves the most severe penalty." He had previously asserted, however, that if Brothers did not actually fire the shot himself, he was with the man who did.

M. R. Jensen, the defendant's white-haired mother, who had been a constant attendant at the trial, became hysterical when the jury voted for the death penalty. She wept bitterly, Betty Cook, wept bitterly.

Brothers said "Let's duck," dodged photographers and artists three seasons in the jail. His attorneys moved for a new trial and the hearing will be held within two weeks.

MRS. TARLETON

ON WAY TO N. C.

Mrs. Fiske Tarleton, of Decatur, widow of the well-known author who was killed Thursday night when the automobile in which he was riding with Horace Kephart, also a writer, skidded from the highway near Bryson City, N. C., and overturned, was on her way Friday night to the North Carolina city to make arrangements for the funeral.

At the time of his death Tarleton was engaged in writing a new novel. He and Mrs. Tarleton, formerly Miss Rita Clark, of Decatur, Ga., southern authors, who died in an automobile wreck last night, were held in abeyance today pending the arrival of relatives.

Leonard Kephart, of Washington, son of the author, was en route here by way of Norfolk, Va., where Mrs. Kephart and five other children live.

Mrs. Tarleton, who was visiting in Jacksonville, Fla., when her husband was killed, was also on her way here. They are expected to arrive tomorrow.

It appeared certain, however, that the two men who in life wrote of the southern mountain folk would rest among them in death.

An investigation went forward into the deaths. Sheriff R. M. Patterson said R. Brown, driver of an automobile which was involved in the crash, was technically held for investigation.

valuation of $9,000,000 on one-half of Caldwell & Co.'s assets when the company was "hopelessly insolvent."

Brown, who was president of Bank of Kentucky Company, is now under federal and state indictments charging misappropriation and embezzlement of more than $2,000,000. Today's action substituted for the state indictment already returned and added the charge of conspiracy to embezzle.

Charles E. Jones, former vice president of Bank of Kentucky Company, and previously indicted with Brown in federal and state courts, was a party to the Brown indictment today.

The jury, which has been investigating Jefferson county bank failures, listed four causes for the crashes. They were:

"First—The Caldwell deal.

"Second—The large amount of loans extended by the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky with Banco as collateral.

"Third—The general financial and business depression.

"Fourth—The publicity given the Caldwell deal with Banco so undermined public confidence as to create uneasiness in financial circles with respect to Banco banks."

The Bank of Kentucky Company served as holding organization for a number of Kentucky banks, several of which failed in the last half of 1929.

Two young Atlantans, students at Harvard, were named high ranking students during the first half of the academic year in a list of honor students announced by the dean, it was stated in dispatches from Cambridge, Massachusetts.

The two are Paul DeGivie, freshman, of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. DeGivie, of 68 Peachtree circle, and Louis Regenstein, of Springdale road. The former is a graduate of St. Paul's Preparatory school and the latter of Boys' High. The honor group contains 604 students. The list, according to classes, shows 152 each for sophomores and juniors, 143 for the senior class and 143 for the freshmen.

The total honor student body represents 18.6 per cent of the undergraduates. Both are prominent in college extra curricular activities.

PARI-MUTUEL BETTING PROPOSED IN ALABAMA

Bill To Repeal "Anti-Near Beer" Statutes Also Sought in Legislature.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 3.—(AP)—Proposals to legalize pari-mutuel betting and horse racing and to repeal the "anti-near beer" statutes today were introduced in the Alabama legislature in a flood of measures that kept the reading clerks busy for the greater part of the session.

The proposal to legalize pari-mutuel betting was in the form of an amendment to a local bill to permit holding of one-week racing meetings in Mobile. The original bill and the amendment were by Senator John Craft, of Mobile.

The bill to legalize racing provides for a three-man commission. Both horse racing and betting are now prohibited by state statute, although both were permitted a number of years ago.

Representative Edgar, of Washington county, author of the "short pint" resolution, introduced the bill to permit the sale of near beer in the state and a companion measure to give the revenue from a privilege tax on dealers and manufacturers to the educational trust fund to lengthen the common school term.

The bills provide for a $500 annual tax on manufacturers and $50 on dealers with a tax of 3 cents per pint on the beverage.

Other important measures introduced at the session included a bill by Representative Wallace, of Russell, to prohibit the employment of girls less than 18 years of age between the hours of 6 p. m. and 7 a. m. in certain industries and businesses. The bill also provides that women may not be required to work more than six consecutive hours.

A soft drink tax of 20 per cent was proposed in another bill which was introduced by Representative St. John, of Cullman county.

The legislature took steps today to solve the state's financial problems, authorizing a commission of 28 members of the two houses to make a study and recommendations.

The senate committee on corporations reported favorably a bill by Senator Jordan, of Etowah, to form a state corporation to manufacture nitrates for fertilizer. The bill provides that the corporation may issue $20,000,000 in bonds in the same manner as the Alabama Bridge Corporation set up under the act of 1927 to issue $5,000,000 in bonds to construct 15 bridges.

The legislature passed only five bills today and then recessed to Tuesday at 2:30 p. m.

TENNESSEE PROBE UNCOVERS 'BONUS'

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 3.—(AP)—Delving deeper into Tennessee affairs, the legislative investigating committee heard from an auditor today that J. F. Acuff, $150-a-month state penitentiary employee, with a wife and invalid son, had admitted a shortage of $350 to $375 in his accounts and that the auditor believed there was a possibility it would reach $2,500 or $3,000.

The testimony of the auditor, J. H. O'Connell, employed by the committee, also included statements that a road material company had sent Grover H. Keaton, one of the three state election commissioners, a check for $834.54 "covering" two amounts of road base material, although the company had denied in a court record that Keaton was its representative.

One of the items covered by the check—Chairman Walter Faulkner referred to it as a "bonus"—was shown to correspond exactly to an invoice of a contracting company that obtained an experimental road reconditioning contract without competitive bidding.

GIRL TRAINING SCHOOL HEAD ASKED REMOVED

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 3.—(AP)—The house committee of elementary institutions recommended to the legislature the removal of the superintendent of the Alabama Training School for Girls at Birmingham, in its report of a sub-committee's recess investigation filed today.

The committee made five recommendations for the school, calling for an immediate change in the head of the institution and a superintendent "whose educational qualifications will fit her to supervise the education of the girl inmates." That four members of the board of trustees reside in Jefferson county and serve as an executive committee and parole board; that a record of all punishment be kept; a system of educational training instituted and that inspections be made by the state child welfare department. The school was the subject of an investigation by the committee during the recent recess and charges of cruel and inhuman treatment were brought against the superintendent, Mrs. Ira F. Champion.

"Daddy" Browning Buys License To Fish

NEW YORK, April 3.—(UP)—City hall reporters hastily telephoned their offices to send photographers this afternoon when Edward W. "Daddy" Browning, once more, trod the familiar path to the city clerk's office where marriage licenses are issued.

As he emerged there was a chorus of, "Did you get a license?" "Yes, replied Browning," smiling happily.

"When are you going to marry this time?"

"Why, nobody—I got a fishing license."

AL CAPONE IS FREED OF VAGRANCY CHARGES

CHICAGO, April 3.—(AP)—Al "Scarface" Capone, first by number and first by reputation among Chicago's 28 "public enemies" was freed in court today of charges that he was a vagrant.

The boss of Chicago's bootleg beer, whose name led the Chicago crime commission's list of gangsters most inimical to the city's welfare, defeated the vagrancy charge issued by Judge John H. Lyle in his short-lived crusade against crime.

His hearing required only five minutes.

Judge Frank M. Padden asked if the state had four witnesses who could testify of his own knowledge to Capone's lack of visible and legal means of support.

Judge Padden asked if the state had four witnesses who could testify of his own knowledge to Capone's lack of visible and legal means of support.

The gang leader grinned and departed without a word from him or his attorneys. Police escorted him to his haunt in a southern "twenty-hundred block."

Capone was served with the warrant during his recent trial for contempt of federal court. He has appealed from a six-month jail sentence there.

OHIO CONVICTS ASK QUICK DEATH PENALTY

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 3.—(AP)—A promise of immediate death in the electric chair will bring a guilty plea Monday from two Ohio penitentiary convicts who confessed they fired the prison, resulting in the snuffing out of the lives of 320 convicts.

The prisoners, Clinton Grate and Hugh Gibson, indicted for first-degree murder on six counts, told Prosecutor Donald Hoskins and newspapermen today they would plead guilty when arraigned Monday, if the prosecutor could guarantee they would be sentenced and electrocuted immediately.

STATE DIVISIONS TO SWAMP OFFICES

State departments will swap offices in the capital building under a new plan announced following removal of the highway department to its new building at 2 Capitol square.

The forestry department will move into offices formerly used by the highway board on the top floor, the entomology department will use the present forestry office in addition to its present offices, and the veterans' bureau will move from the first to the fourth floor.

The state auditor will take over the veterans' bureau office space on the first floor, and the veterinarian will move into space recently occupied by the state chemist on the second floor. The education department will add to its offices the space now occupied by the tax commissioner, who will go to the first floor. The banking department will move across the hall in the first floor, and the department of motor vehicles will occupy the present office of the banking department. The game and fish department will add to its suite the present office of the veterinarian.

ELECTRIC LIGHT MEN NAME CHATTANOOGAN

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 3.—(AP)—J. C. Guild, of Chattanooga, was elected president of the southeastern division of the National Electric Light Association at the closing session of their convention here today. Other officers included L. A. McGraw, Charleston, S. C., first vice president; J. W. Hancock, of Roanoke, Va., second vice president; and J. M. Barry, of Birmingham, Ala., third vice president. Members elected to the executive committee included Alex. Speer, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; C. A. Collier, of Atlanta; F. V. Underwood, of Knoxville; G. C. Estill, of Miami; Senator J. W. King, of Alexandria, Va.; F. A. Matthews, of Wilmington, N. C.; E. H. Ginn, of Atlanta, and Thomas Fuller, of Atlanta.

CLARENCE SAUNDERS PLANS NEW STORES

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 3.—(AP)—Clarence Saunders, of Memphis, Tenn., whose adventures in chain food stores have filled many pages in the history of the industry, said today he would return to Tennessee within two weeks and prepare to launch a new type of department store backed by private capital.

Saunders, who permit to sell stock in the Clarence Saunders Stores, Ltd., was revoked recently in California by the state corporation commissioner, declared he would spread his new type store which includes druggery, bakery goods and sundry staples, throughout the nation.

COUNTY DELAYS ACTION ON ALMSHOUSE DEAL

Appraisers Will Review Both Pieces of Property and Report April 10.

The county commission Friday delayed until April 10 action on a proposal to trade the county almshouse property near Buckhead for a 1,300-acre tract on the southwestern side of the city owned by the Chattanooga Brick Company. On the date fixed it plans to have before it a report of five appraisers to be selected today.

Two of the appraisers are to be appointed by the Atlanta Real Estate Board, two by the Inter-Civic Association and the fifth by the four persons named by these two groups. The appraisers, at the request of Chairman Walter C. Hendrix, will go over the valuation of both pieces of property and report to the commission. No public hearings are planned.

The action on the proposal was taken at a special meeting of the board. It followed a motion by Commissioner Walter B. Stewart.

A number of leading citizens of the south side, headed by Dr. W. S. McNeal, R. N. Fickett and Colonel Fred W. Benteen, appeared at the meeting and urged the board to delay action for two weeks, during which the south side citizens said they would obtain and furnish the board data showing that the deal would not be to the best public interests.

The almshouse property contains only 300 acres, but opponents of the deal assert that it is worth more than the entire 1,300 on the brick company's land.

Cotton Queen Named.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 3.—(AP)—Governor Horton today appointed Miss Woodville Gaines, of Knoxville, daughter of Representative G. "Powers" Gaines, as "cotton queen" to represent Tennessee at the southeastern cotton festival at Anderson, S. C., April 9 and 10.

Vivian Duncan Becomes Mother Of Baby Girl

PARIS, April 3.—(AP)—Vivian Duncan, American actress, who says she was told by three American specialists that child birth would be fatal to her, has come to Paris with a baby daughter, born the night of March 20 at Wurzburg, Bavaria.

She has named the child Evelyn Orestin Duncan Asther, and her husband and father, Nils Asther, who played opposite Greta Garbo, is expected here shortly from America to have his first look at his baby daughter.

Miss Duncan told the Paris edition of the Chicago Tribune that she had confided her trip to the approach of travel to the Countess Roussy De Sales, the former Mrs. Cecil Stewart, and at her advice had come to the Dr. Gauss Clinic at Wurzburg.

The first twilight sleep administration did not work so well but the second caused no trouble. She went to sleep at 4 p. m. March 20, and awoke at 6 o'clock the next morning, and was well enough when she reached Paris to go out and find an apartment for herself and the youngster the first day.

BANK TO CO-OPERATE IN MEMORIAL PLANS

Assurance that the borough of Atlanta will be given ample opportunity to work out plans for revival of the Stone Mountain Confederate memorial before the memorial half-dollars, which the Federal Reserve bank has been carrying, are dispensed, was given Friday by M. W. Bell, cashier.

Mr. Bell's letter was written to Horace Russell, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and was forwarded to Mayor James L. Key by Lawrence McCord, who is keying on negotiations to place an acceptable deed to the mountain scarp in the hands of the mayor.

The letter expresses the hope "that the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce will prove of material value in bringing about a successful consummation of the undertaking."

OFFICIAL TAKES STAND IN BOOKKEEPER'S TRIAL

Buford Details Alleged Discrepancies in E. P. Kellam's Entries.

One witness, T. C. Buford, an official of the Randall Coal Company, occupied the stand all day Friday at the trial of E. P. Kellam, Jr., former bookkeeper for the company, who is on trial for alleged embezzlement of more than $12,000 from the Randall company between 1927 and 1930.

Mr. Buford brought into court with him two truck loads of books of the company. He spent the day detailing alleged discrepancies in Kellam's entries and undergoing cross examination by William Schley Howard, defense counsel.

Assistant Solicitor John H. Hudson, who is directing the prosecution, said he would not be able to rest the state's case before Monday night. Mr. Howard said his client's defense is that he is "not guilty."

FELTON STONE GIVEN BLOOD TRANSFUSION

A blood transfusion was resorted to by Grady hospital physicians Thursday in an effort to improve the condition of Felton Stone, 50, of 505 Tenth street, according to attendants there. L. W. Stone, son of the patient, furnished the needed blood, they said, but the elder man's condition is still considered serious. Mr. Stone was taken to the hospital March 28 for an operation.

Tea Room's Larder Looted by Burglars

Burglars entered the tea room at 236 Capitol avenue, operated by Mrs. O. H. Sheffield, Friday morning, and, after cooking themselves a meal of bacon, eggs, toast and coffee, departed, taking with them such of the contents of the ice box as could be readily carried off, according to police reports.

Worried Zoo Officials Watch Egg of Condor

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP)—Zoo officials are giving the baby gorilla and the newly arrived king cobra only passing glances nowadays, but they are pausing before an incubator which houses a pale green egg.

The egg belongs to the only female North American condor in captivity and one of the few of the black birds alive. It will be worth a good deal more than its weight in gold if it hatches.

"And if it does," said Dr. William M. Mann, director of the National Zoological park, "I think we'll stage a celebration. So far as I know, one has never been hatched in captivity and few are being hatched anywhere just now."

MASSEE, DUBOSE WILL SPEAK HERE

Two outstanding American churchmen have been invited to speak at a four-day Bible conference to be conducted by the Southern Evangelical Association in the Kimball House beginning Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

They are Dr. J. C. Massee, former pastor of the Tremont Temple Baptist church, of Boston, and the other is Bishop Horace M. DuBose, of the Methodist church, south, and former pastor of the First M. E. church of Atlanta.

Dr. Massee opens the conference Easter Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock and Bishop DuBose begins his ministry Monday noon and continues each noon and at 7:30 p. m. through Wednesday.

BIRTHDAY OBSERVED BY WESTERN UNION

Employees and patrons of the Western Union Telegraph Company throughout the world today are observing the seventy-fifth anniversary of America's largest telegraph system.

The "diamond jubilee" is being celebrated here by the employees of the Western Union under the leadership of N. W. Hendrix, superintendent of the Atlanta office. The company now has 217,458 miles of pole lines, 1,911,257 miles of wire, 3,842 miles of land cables, 30,757 nautical miles of ocean cables, 24,298 telegraph offices and 58,587 employees.

RED CROSS CONSIDERS MINERS' AID REQUEST

Workers' Unions Ask Assistance for Distressed in 3 Different States.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP)—The American Red Cross today considered requests for aid for distressed miners in West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee.

A plea for assistance for West Virginia miners was made to the organization by R. A. Scott, vice president of the State Mine Workers' Union. Meanwhile President Hoover sent a telegram to W. M. Turnbaker, of Knoxville, Tenn., a United Mine Workers' official, saying Chairman Payne, of the Red Cross, had promised "every effort will be made to eliminate the deplorable conditions" in Kentucky and Tennessee.

James L. Fieser, Red Cross vice chairman, said it was not the function of the national organization to care for localized industrial distress conditions but that this duty rested entirely with the Red Cross chapters in communities concerned.

Payne was not in Washington today but Fieser promised the West Virginian his plan would be laid before the national chairman tomorrow.

Word came from other sources during the day of distressed conditions in West Virginia and Kentucky. Harry B. Dynes, of Indianapolis, a labor department conciliator, said "a had found a distressful condition" among coal miners in the eastern section of Kentucky. He came to Washington to report to Secretary Dusk and confer with Red Cross officials.

Fred C. Croxton, district representative of the president's emergency employment committee, who had just returned from West Virginia, said he found conditions so bad they almost were unbelievable.

Neglect Charged by Widow In Probe of Hawkes' Death

Inadequate Medical Attention Laid to Prison Farm Officials at Hearing in Milledgeville.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., April 3.—(P)—Circumstances surrounding the death of T. W. Hawkes, former cashier of the Merchants and Mechanics bank, of Macon, who died last December, nine days after he had begun a five-year term for embezzlement, were the subject of an official investigation by the state prison commission here Thursday.

The prison commission convened in special session at the prison farm to probe charges of neglect filed by Mrs. Hawkes against B. H. Dunnaway, superintendent of the institution. After hearing several witnesses and considering several affidavits submitted in the case, the commission took the matter under advisement, announcing that a decision would be made later.

Mrs. Hawkes charges were based on the fact that her husband was admitted to the prison on December 18, 1929, when into the field for labor the following morning and two days later was stricken with pneumonia, from which he died on December 27 in the Milledgeville city hospital.

Superintendent Dunnaway was given no medical attention before being put to work, although he is given easy tasks until he becomes acclimated to the prison life, Mrs. B. N. Mathes, sister of the former bank cashier, declared that when she and Mrs. Hawkes reached the prison, Mrs. Hawkes was seriously ill, but was not given medical attention, and that she herself bought eggs and orange juice for him.

Superintendent Dunnaway, corroborated by Dr. B. W. Wood, chief of the assistant prison physician, and several inmates of the institution, testified that Hawkes was given every attention the prison hospital afforded when he became ill, that he was not ill, they said he did not ask for dry clothing when he came in from the field after being out in the rain, that he worked all the next day without complaint, and made no effort to see a doctor at the regular period for medical attention on the morning of the day on which he was taken ill.

A physician inmate at the institution worked with him all night December 20, they declared, and the following morning Dr. Wood examined him, but treatment, when it became evident that pneumonia might develop, Dr. Binion himself was called in later and approved the treatment, which was testified, and Mrs. Hawkes, who had arrived from Macon and was a guest at Superintendent Dunnaway's home, expressed her appreciation for the attention shown her husband, according to Dr. Binion and Superintendent Dunnaway.

Dr. Binion declared that on the day Hawkes was admitted to the Milledgeville city hospital, Mrs. Hawkes called him off into an anteroom and remarked that she "hoped Hawkes would die" that it was "not right for him to live" and that "it would be the best thing for all concerned."

"His death was caused by dilation of the heart, resulting presumably from pneumonia, although it might have resulted from other causes which could not be determined except by an autopsy, which was not permitted," Dr. Binion declared. He denied vigorously that he had been guilty of any neglect, or that his assistant, Dr. Woods, was not fully competent to give the proper medical attention to Hawkes.

Noted Author Finds Pleasure in Sketching

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 3.—(P)—Winston Churchill, noted author, now finds pleasure in sketching. While passing through Savannah on route to his New Hampshire home from Florida, he sketched several homes in this historic Georgia city. He said he was only distantly related to the English Churchill.

While at the prison, he asserted, and had he asked for a medical examination before going into the field he would have been kept inside if his condition was such as made it advisable. Dr. Binion supported Superintendent Dunnaway in the contention that Hawkes labored under a misapprehension as to the policy of the prison administration, and requested work in the field, even though he felt unequal to the task, in order to make a good impression on the prison officials.

"He told me that he wanted to see his sentence like a man, and make a good prisoner," Superintendent Dunnaway said, "and I believe he carried that idea too far in not asking for medical examination, but being put to work, although he is given easy tasks until he becomes acclimated to the prison life."

Mrs. B. N. Mathes, sister of the former bank cashier, declared that when she and Mrs. Hawkes reached the prison, Mrs. Hawkes was seriously ill, but was not given medical attention, and that she herself bought eggs and orange juice for him.

Superintendent Dunnaway, corroborated by Dr. B. W. Wood, chief of the assistant prison physician, and several inmates of the institution, testified that Hawkes was given every attention the prison hospital afforded when he became ill, that he was not ill, they said he did not ask for dry clothing when he came in from the field after being out in the rain, that he worked all the next day without complaint, and made no effort to see a doctor at the regular period for medical attention on the morning of the day on which he was taken ill.

WATER SYSTEMS URGED FOR FARM KITCHENS

"Kitchen Relief To Accompany Farm Relief," Advocated by G. I. Johnson.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 3.—(P)—Kitchen relief to accompany farm relief, and more economic growing of children to accompany more economic production of crops are advocated by specialists on the staff of the Georgia State College of Agriculture.

G. I. Johnson, extension agricultural engineer, the champion of kitchen relief, his special interest is water systems, which he says are capable of saving the farm housewife from 30 to 100 trips daily out of her warm kitchen into the rains or blustering winds of spring.

"Not every family can have the advantages offered by a water system," Johnson said, "especially in this time of depression. However, there are hundreds of farm homes in every county that should have the advantages of a kitchen sink. Nearly three-fourths of the water carried into a kitchen has to be thrown out again. Therefore a kitchen sink will save nearly as many steps as a water system, and the cost is only from one-sixteenth to one-fifth as much."

He cited the case of farm women who had the labor of saving from 217,000 steps a year. The other estimated a saving of 1,500,000 in seven years. Neither had running water, Miss Erna Proctor, extension nutritionist, is the advocate of economic child care.

"The health of the people is basic to any prosperity," she said, "and it is for this reason that the nutritionist says the more food the farm can save to produce during any period the greater will be the return in terms of health and cash profit."

Where the farm produces milk, eggs, fruit, vegetables, and poultry and grains, the family will invariably tend to have an adequate diet whether or not the housekeeper has ever heard the word nutrition.

"Every county in Georgia, while it is planning to grow crops on a more economic basis, should plan to grow children on a more economic basis, and the only way this can be done is for the farmer and his wife to adopt a nutrition program along with their culture progressive farm program."

The program as outlined by the nutritionists of the extension division of the Georgia State College of Agriculture requires a spring and full garden on the budget plan, food preservation on a budget basis, fruits, poultry and cows for every family.

W. M. Hardy, of Molina, a brother-in-law of Hawkes, said he talked with Hawkes in the hospital and that Hawkes told him he did not expect to get well.

"He said they forced him to walk eight miles in the rain with only a thin coat, light trousers and summer underwear," Mr. Hardy testified.

To the accusation the prison officials replied that on the first morning Hawkes went to the field rain began to pour and he was returned to the prison with the rest of his squad. Hawkes walked less than a mile, they declared, but the following day, which was fair, he worked all day long hauling brush, making no complaint of illness or fatigue. He wore the regular prison uniform, they asserted, but did not put on the underwear furnished at the institution.

Both prison physicians, as well as the inmates and officials of the prison, commended Superintendent Dunnaway most highly as a man of humane policies in the handling of prisoners.

They characterized him as an efficient administrative officer, willing to listen to the complaint or request of any inmate, and ready at all times to go more than half way to cooperate with prisoners desiring to make good records.

The superintendent himself expressed surprise that Mrs. Hawkes had filed charges against him, since at the time of her husband's illness she had indicated her satisfaction with the treatment he was receiving, and voiced her appreciation for the kindness of Superintendent Dunnaway.

Although the hearing was more or less informal, Superintendent Dunnaway was represented by Attorney Irwin Sibley, of the firm of Sibley & Allen.

Mrs. Hawkes was not represented by legal counsel.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., April 3.—Harry Stillwell Edwards, of Macon, spoke at the Georgia State College for Women here Friday.

Two Georgia Students Complete Insomnia Marathon for Science

ATLANTA, Ga., April 3.—(P)—Harry Grofsky, of Toon, N. J., and Wendell P. Morris, of Pensacola, Fla., University of Georgia students, today were "catching up some sleep" after completing an insomnia marathon of 100 hours each in the interest of science.

The experiment was conducted by Dr. A. E. Edwards, head of the department of psychology at the university, to determine the reactions of an individual to long periods without sleep. Dr. Edwards said today that he was not ready to announce his conclusions, but that his preliminary studies indicated there was not much change in the condition of the youths.

"They lost a little weight," Dr. Edwards said, "were a little weak, had trouble with their eyes and suffered slight headaches. They also showed a little difficulty in mental work."

Grofsky and Morris said that almost constant conversation and frequent face washes with cold water enabled them to stay awake. Although they spent most of their time during the experiment in the psychology laboratory, they attended all their classes regularly.

"Someone was with them all the time," Dr. Edwards stated. "They wandered about the campus for exercise and went to restaurants for meals."

Tests on the effect of coffee and cigarettes as stimulants also were made. Grofsky drank a small quantity of coffee, while Morris consumed an over-size portion. Both were provided an unlimited supply of cigarettes.

Following the experiment Grofsky slept for an hour and then attended a wedding. Retiring again, he slept more than 15 hours. Morris slept 12 hours, spent only 15 minutes for eating and then added eight more hours of rest.

Although both youths lost weight and were greatly weakened Dr. Edwards revealed that Morris gained strength on the last day of the experiment.

Morris is a graduate student of psychology, while Grofsky is taking the general freshman course at the university.

MACON, Ga., April 3.—(P)—Elvin B. Hamilton, Macon life insurance agent, after attending a banquet with fellow insurance agents Thursday night, drove to his garage at the rear of his residence here and committed suicide by inhaling the deadly carbon monoxide gas from the exhaust of his automobile, according to evidence uncovered Friday in an inquest conducted by Coroner Martin J. Thompson.

The body was discovered shortly after 4 o'clock Friday morning by relatives who had been summoned to search for Hamilton. A short time later Hamilton had discovered a note in the pocket of a discarded coat which told of her husband's plan to end his life.

The note was dated March 19, and was found in a pocket of a coat worn Thursday by Hamilton. Late in the afternoon he had changed his suit in preparation for the banquet, it was stated.

A verdict of death from "inhaling carbon monoxide gas and in our opinion it was suicide," was returned by the coroner's jury.

Testimony at the inquest indicated that Hamilton feared he was losing his mind as a result of financial difficulties. Careful preparations had been made for the fatal act, judging from the evidence.

Phil Hamilton, 15-year-old son of the deceased, and W. H. Bowen, city detective, told how Mr. Hamilton had bored a small hole in the floor of the car and had attached a rubber hose to the exhaust pipe beneath. The insurance agent then had closed the doors of the car and had moved over to the rear seat to await the coming of death. The motor of the car was still running when the body was discovered at 4:30 o'clock.

MRS. C. H. WHITE, 87, DIES IN SAVANNAH

Aged Georgia Woman Wove Last Suit Worn by "Stonewall" Jackson.

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 3.—(P)—Mrs. C. H. White, who wove and made the last suit worn by General "Stonewall" Jackson, died here Friday afternoon at the residence of her son, Leigh M. White, after a long illness.

Mrs. White, who was born in Monroe county, May 9, 1844, was before her marriage Miss Willie Murphy. She was first honor graduate of the class of 1861, Bessie Tift College, and a memorial chair has been placed in the auditorium there in her honor.

The suit which Mrs. White made for General Jackson has been placed in the Georgia room of the Confederate museum in Richmond among other historic relics.

Funeral services for Mrs. White are to be conducted from the Methodist church in Barnesville Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock by the Rev. John Paxton Erwin.

Improved Quality of Cotton Urged by Dr. A. M. Soule

Lowered Costs Also Advocated in Speech Before Group of Bankers, Farmers at Waycross.

Waycross, April 3.—(P)—Improved quality, high yields, and lowered costs "offer the only way out" of the present difficult situation confronting cotton growers, Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the Georgia State College of Agriculture, told a meeting of bankers and farmers here today.

"The outlook for cotton is not encouraging," he said. "Prices are below the cost of production in the great majority of instances. Business has not recovered from the slump which overtook it more than a year ago. World conditions, generally speaking, are unsettled and not likely to readjust themselves satisfactorily for some months to come. Cotton is being produced more extensively and in a greater number of countries than ever before, a tendency which is likely to be further accentuated during 1931. This brings a condition of competition into being which formerly did not exist. Finally, the purchasing power of our people both at home and abroad is less than it has been. We are also faced with a carry-over of approximately nine million bales, which means that a six or seven million-bale crop this year will amply supply both the local and world need for American cotton."

"While this is not a pleasant picture to contemplate, no one apparently believes that the acreage devoted to the crop last year will be cut appreciably during the ensuing season."

Dr. Soule said under the circumstances it seemed "reasonable to suggest the minimization" of cotton acreage, the use of only the best lands for cotton, and large per-acre yields made possible through cultivation of choice land and fertilization of such land.

BY JOAN SUTHERLAND

INSTALLMENT XII.

"Perfectly happy," she looked up at him, and her eyes sparkled, her face was radiant. "I can't quite believe any of it—yet. I don't feel as if I were really alive, only dreaming. Perhaps when I get to the country, when we are at Le Touquet, or at Vernet, it will seem more real. Here, in Paris, I feel as if I were living in a dream, and I am terrified of waking up. Oh, there was lightning! Are we going to have a storm?" She started, drawing near him like a child, and Feodor put his arms around her.

"Yes, I think so," he said. "There has been lightning for some little while. Why, Toni, darling, do you mind storms?"

"I hate them," Toni said, in a strained voice. "I hate the lightning. To me it is evil and terrible. I have tried to get over it all my life. I know how stupid it is! I am not afraid of being hurt, but it makes me feel—oh, I don't know how it makes me feel—only as if there is some dreadful force abroad, nothing to do with nature, or God, or anything normal, but just blind and evil. As if when a storm comes there will all sorts of powers let loose about it—powers before which we really are helpless, a thin veil between us and an unimaginable world of evil."

He tightened his hold upon her, drawing her away from the window. Toni tried to laugh.

"Feodor, dear, I know how foolish it is. But I hate it. I am superstitious. I wish it hadn't come tonight."

All the happiness and radiance had gone from her face, which was strained and colorless, her eyes were dark and her mouth shut in a hard line.

"I wish it hadn't come tonight, just tonight, when we were so happy; to me it is like an ill omen. Oh, things are not going wrong, are they?" He loosened his arm about her, and took her hands once more in his, holding them firmly.

"No, Toni," he said, "don't think that. If you think of evil, evil will come. At least that's my idea. I believe if you think about a thing a great deal, you are apt to invite it. Of course, nothing is going wrong. Why? We are both healthy. We are both entirely and completely happy and satisfied with one another. There is nothing likely to go wrong, dear."

But Toni would not be comforted. "I wish it hadn't come tonight," she reiterated pitifully. "It has spoiled things. I am afraid. I don't like to be impatient with me, will you?"

He bent down to her. "Dearest, do you think I could ever be impatient with you? Oh, Toni, you don't know me yet. I don't understand that you've got me. I suddenly opened my hand and touched the center of her palm with his lips—"you've got me just there. It's you who may be impatient with me. You probably will be. But if you feel that way we won't stay here. Come back into the salon, where you won't feel it at all."

He took her back into the room, pulled the heavy curtains across the windows, and drew a chair up for her near the sofa.

"Your mother seems to have vanished. She is very thoughtful. . . . I was dying just for a few minutes alone with you. She told me she wished me to join you at Le Touquet. I am not sure if I can get away, but I can come to Vernet."

"Of course, we'll be a big party," Toni said ruefully, "that's the worst of it. We won't have a great deal of time alone."

"I shall not have any time alone with you, it seems to me, until we are married, and that I warn you must be soon. You are going to marry me in the autumn, aren't you? October? October the tenth. You've promised."

"I have not!" Toni exclaimed with some indignation. "I never said a word about it! I simply said we should be back in Paris on October the tenth."

"That's the same thing," he retorted. "If you are back in Paris, where I am, you are going to marry me."

me. What on earth is the good of your living here, and my living in my rooms? Besides, his light tone changed. "I can't wait any longer. I'm not a very patient man, and I love you, and I want you. You can guess a little how I feel for you, Toni. You can guess how hard it is for me even to sit here and not touch you."

She nodded. "Yes, I think so," she said; "because I know how I feel. Yes, if you want me on October the tenth, I'll marry you. Only give us time to fix things up, that's all."

He laid his hand on hers for a minute, then went on talking. "That means then we shall just have three days before you go to Le Touquet to hunt around for an apartment or house."

Lady Alice, coming back half an hour later from writing letters, found them arguing hotly about the respective merits of a house or an apartment, and then Feodor rose to go.

Soon after he had left the storm broke in a loud peal of thunder, that belled angrily through the dark, overcast sky, and hurrying into her own room Toni closed the window and pulled the heavy shutters.

"I hate storms," she said to her mother, standing in the doorway. "I can't think why it should have come tonight, to spoil the memory of this perfect evening. You like him, mother, don't you?"

"I like him immensely," she said. "It wouldn't make much difference if I didn't; you're terribly in love, my dear."

Toni nodded. "Yes," she said, "terribly." That is just the word. Were you, mother, in love with daddy like that?"

The elder woman's face grew very pale. "Yes," she said; "I was terribly in love with him. I think that is where you get your power of loving. I loved your father so much that when he died I lived for a while."

"I think that is perhaps why Greta married Ronnie—lack of interest in life then, I mean. Ronnie is just the best, the dearest soul in the world, but not the man to marry Greta. You see, I was so unhappy, so heart-broken, that I didn't take very much notice of her. I didn't train her as I should have done or enter into her life."

Toni, sitting on the stool in front of her dressing-table, was watching her mother gravely. "Don't worry," she said. "You couldn't have done anything with Greta, however you had trained her. Greta is one of those apparently very gentle people, who is exceedingly obstinate and set on going her own way. You would never have stopped her doing what she wanted, mother, no matter what you had done. But Greta is not like you and not like daddy; even I can remember that."

Lady Alice smiled a little. "No, she is certainly not like your father," she said. "Greta isn't very much like any of us. I am afraid she is having rather a bad time just now, Toni. She is discontented. Perhaps Le Touquet will cheer her up. We will try to give her an amusing summer."

Rather irrelevantly Toni spoke, looking in the glass. "You are very patient with her. I think Greta needs a spanking. If I were Ronnie I would give her a run for her money and just behave to her as she has behaved to him. Why can't he get up a flirtation with some attractive woman or other? That would bring Greta to heel pretty quickly. What's the matter with her, my dear, is that she is so vain and must have somebody to administer to that vanity. It is no good my pretending to be very fond of her, because I am not, and she is not in the least fond of me. In fact, she is perfectly furious that I have grabbed Feodor."

"Toni," Lady Alice came across the room and laid her hand on Toni's shoulder. "Toni, my dear, don't talk like that. It is really rather impossible of you. Grabbing Feodor, indeed. It seems to me more like Feodor grabbing you."

Toni laughed and got up, pulling the thin georgette negligee tighter around her and pinning it on one foot in front of the long mirror.

RHODES MEMORIAL HALL KEEPS OPEN HOUSE TOMORROW

American Colonists Act As Official Hostesses

The Georgia Society Daughters of the American Colonists will act as official hostesses at the open house which has been planned by Miss Ruth Blair, state historian and director of the Rhodes Memorial Hall, which will be held tomorrow afternoon at the hall. A group of distinguished officers of the society have been invited by Miss Blair to receive her, including Mrs. Joseph M. High, vice president general; Mrs. Frances Brown Chase, state regent; Mrs. Lucius W. McConnell, first vice regent; Mrs. Thomas C. Mell, second vice regent; Mrs. John William Smith, third vice regent; Mrs. George L. Breitenbuecher, recording secretary; Mrs. James Harold Nicholson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. Whitford Russell, treasurer; Mrs. Anna Laura Hill, registrar; Mrs. Virginia C. Hardin, historian; Mrs. Dennis R. Petet, color bearer; Mrs. R. McMillan, geologist; Mrs. Howard H. McCall, parliamentarian; Mrs. L. W. Rogers, auditor, and chaplain, Dr. Howard M. Potat.

Interesting relics, property of the state, will be displayed and choice old treasures belonging to the members of the association will be added attractions. Ancient colonial manuscripts, oil paintings of the state officials, antique jewelry, the wills of the early settlers, and records of the transporting of the colonists from England to the Oglethorpe settlement in Georgia will form a part of the historical treasure to be shown.

Reception Series.

This reception is one of a series planned by Miss Blair with the various organizations of the state acting as the official hosts. The receptions will be held the first Sunday in each month and in May the Sons and Daughters of the Pilgrims will receive. Each entertainment will be an open house when the public is invited to meet the official hosts and view the treasures housed by the Rhodes Memorial Hall.

Police Relief Auxiliary.

Thursday afternoon the ladies' auxiliary of the Police Relief Association met with Mrs. W. M. Weaver at her home in Oakland City.

A short business session was held with the president, Mrs. E. C. Hudson, presiding. Mrs. M. A. Hornsby and Mrs. A. B. Bishop, two new members, were welcomed in the auxiliary. There were 16 members and 3 visitors present.

St. Luke's Auxiliary.

Woman's auxiliary of St. Luke's Episcopal church met Tuesday, April 7, at the home of Mrs. Robert Pringle, on Oakdale road, at 3 o'clock. The business meeting will be followed by a social hour at which Rev. High Moor and Mrs. Moor will be honor guests. An invitation is extended to all members of the auxiliary to attend.

Wisteria Club Meets.

Mrs. A. C. Hay entertained the Wisteria Club recently at her home in Elbert street, with a party suggestive of spring. The rooms were decorated with cut flowers. The members were presented with a lovely piece of china. Mrs. R. A. Shatzer won top score.

The guests were Mesdames C. J. Weinmeister, J. L. Snook, C. J. Landrum, R. A. Shatzer, G. T. Fulton, T. Herman Fulton, B. C. Hay, Carl Ellington, J. T. Harrison and C. B. Strickland. Mrs. Weinmeister will entertain the club in May.

Keyboard Club.

Merry Keyboard Club met Wednesday afternoon at the home studio of the teacher, Miss Georgia Phillips, 889 Gordon street, West End. The program was given by the members. Margaret Harrison was placed on the honor roll for making the highest average in music during the month of March. Following the program, a social hour was enjoyed. The next club meeting for the pupils will be held during National Music Week.

Easter Readings.

An interesting feature of the Easter services in the junior department of Druid Hills Methodist church, which will be a group of readings by Mrs. Fred J. White, noted platform reader. The selection given by Mrs. White will be appropriate to the Easter season.

Whiteford Club.

Whiteford Garden Club met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. P. Waites on Hardee street with the president, Mrs. C. L. Smith, presiding. The Whiteford club will enter the garden clubs' flower show to be held at Davidson-Paxon's April 6-18. Mesdames Royall Houghton, L. S. Kelley, Edwin Saye and C. L. Smith were the club's representatives at the recent fifth district rally. Reports of interest were given by these members. Plans for the fifth district flower show were given in detail by Mrs. C. L. Smith.

Miss Boykin Hostess.

Miss Frances Boykin, who arrived yesterday with the Hollins College girls to spend the Easter holidays at her home, was hostess at an informal luncheon at her home on West Avenue drive, complimenting Miss Elvira Smith and her guests, Miss Margaret Tilton and Miss Mary Fells.

West End Woman's Club Presents Silver To Mr. and Mrs. Smart

A beautiful event of Friday afternoon was the reception at which the West End Woman's Club entertained in honor of Mr. and Mrs. J. Henry Smart. Mrs. Smart before her recent marriage was Miss Dorothy Brodgon, second vice president of the West End Woman's Club. The clubhouse was decorated with palms and Easter lilies. The tea table was banked with yellow and white flowers, carrying out the colors of the club, with a diminutive bride and groom placed on the centerpiece. During the afternoon a musical program was rendered. Mrs. Christopher Brown sang several nuptial selections and Mrs. Roy Bean and little Miss Jane Withers sang appropriate readings. Mrs. A. L. Slaton rendered several piano selections. Dressed as a bride and groom, Miss Jane Withers and Bobby Peyton entered the room, bearing a chest of flat silver, with a complete service for eight, which they presented to Mr. and Mrs. Smart from the West End Woman's Club. The receiving line consisted of the officers of the club and in addition Mr. and Mrs. Smart—Mrs. E. W. Brodgon, Mrs. M. D. Sawyer, Helen C. J. N. McEachern, Mrs. C. M. Settles, president of the club, were with Mrs. Smart's guests. Mrs. Smart's gown was of black lace and she carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses showered with swansonia. Mrs. McEachern wore a model of cream lace. Mrs. Brodgon wore a dress of jade green chiffon and Mrs. Davies wore black lace combined with white. The hostess chairman of the club, Mrs. Ben T. Jerome, received the guests at the door. Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. Charles C. Fife, Mrs. C. J. Fairies, Mrs. E. F. DeFrees and Mrs. T. E. Roberts.

College Belles Feted at Series Of Gayeties During Holidays

Outstanding among the social events of the Easter holidays was the luncheon at which Miss Bright Bickerstaff and Miss Sarah Simms were joint hostesses at the Atlanta Athletic Club, complimenting Miss Frances Woolford, who is at home for the Easter holidays from Mary Baldwin school, and Miss Martha Morrow, of Washington, D. C., the guest of Mrs. Bates Elch. Pastel shades of pink and green were emphasized in the spring flowers and table decorations.

Happiness Does Not Consist Necessarily in the Fullness or the Emptiness of Life, But in the Quiet and Unquestioning Acceptance of Our Portion.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD: I have been working ever since I was 14 years old and am now 24. During this time I have helped with the support of a large family and have missed the fun and gaiety that most young people have. Now the younger children are at work and helping my mother financially and my thoughts are turning to my own life. My ambition is the normal one: I want a home and a husband and a family of children. But, no man ever approaches me. They are kind and courteous but manifest no interest in me beyond that point. I am neither ugly nor beautiful and not old-fashioned, though I have never made any advances to the "high-powered" sex. I have waited patiently for my life companion but he seems to have gone in the opposite direction. Can't you be a fairy godmother to me and help me find my prince? GRISLEDA.

ANSWER: No fairy godmother advice, no magic wand to wave, no hidden prince to be found, no fairy slippers to fit to the foot, only the dull, drab world that you do not want. Happiness in life consists not necessarily in its fullness but in quiet, unquestioning acceptance of the portion of our portion. "Father, give me my portion," said the prodigal son. "Life, give me my portion," say we all. And what portion? Who can say. Some get a large one and are ill-content. Some get a small one and are well content. Every woman in her dreams sees herself the wife of some good husband, the center of a home about which husband and children revolve. This is the stuff that a woman's dreams are made of.

I went with a friend recently to a home where sickness and sorrow have been the daily experience for four years. The occasion of the visit was a second death in that home, in a short time. We were met at the door by a maiden lady of middle age. And what was her house my companion said to me: "What a benediction that woman has been to her community! When there is sickness and sorrow among her acquaintances she is always there. When comfort is needed she has it to dispense. When sympathy is needed she has it to give and when death comes she spends the door to admit other friends who come to pay their last respects." Then she added this trenchant thought: "The fullest lives are not those which are filled with selfish pleasure and possessions but the empty ones that are filled with unselfish ministrations to others."

Professor Julian Huxley has written a very delightful article called "Religion Meets Science." In it he says: "Our reason often serves only as a means of finding reasons to justify our desires. . . . Our minds, like our bodies, are devices for helping us to get along somehow in our struggle for existence." Very true and we must use these minds or the struggle down us. A greater teacher and idealist said, "I came not to be ministered unto but to minister."

Every woman should put her best foot foremost to wring from life the legitimate joys she craves. She is justified in using all the devices with which nature has equipped her. Sometimes the equipment is too paltry to purchase what she wants. Sometimes it is so lavish that she cannot use all that is offered her. The acceptance of the result is the determining factor in her happiness.

It seems to me that a girl who left school at 14 should turn her attention to the cultivating of her mind. If she cannot find in real life the things her nature craves she may find those things in books. Her horizon will certainly widen as she reads. She may broaden narrow experience by reading the experiences of others who have lived broadly. She may learn to adjust herself to a life, which is disappointing, by learning how others have accomplished it. And best of all, she can nourish nascent ambitions with the riches of the world's best thought.

It is spring time. And of all the sports that have ever been devised there is not one comparable to digging in the soil. There are lessons to be learned with every spadeful of earth that is lifted. There are springing hopes planted with every seed. There are thrilling excitements furnished by every slender seedling that pushes its way through the soft earth. There are satisfactions with every bud, and consolation in every flower. There is no better way for a woman to get a grip on life in a garden. Take down your seed catalog, make a list. Order by picture and description. Life will take on new meaning for you when you have begun to grow things. Best of all, out of that experience there will come some of the best friendships that you have ever dreamed of. There is no stronger bond between people than the "growing bond." As a dear old lady once said to me, "My garden has not only given me beauty, it has given me some of my choicest friends."

Does that sound like foolish advice to give a woman who is looking for a husband and a home? You just try it and see how wise it is. One may find many things in a garden. I seem to have heard a story of a woman who found her husband there.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Southern Clubs Protest Martin's Ruling Making Polvogt 'B' Man; Crackers Outhit Slugging Yankees To Take First Game Here, 8-4

CLUBS PROTEST MARTIN'S RULING ON 'B' PLAYERS

Crackers Seek New Catcher, Fearing Decision Will Be Reversed.

By Herb Clark.

With directors of six other clubs raising a storm of protest against the "B" class ruling made Thursday by President John Martin, under which Freddie Polvogt remains a "B" player, Crackers officials Friday opened negotiations with Baxter Williams, former Sally league catcher, fearing possible reversal which may cause Polvogt's status to revert to that of an "A" player.

The Thursday communication from Martin's office, based on a resolution adopted at the winter meeting of Southern association officials, stated that all players who were last year in the "B" class would remain in that class this season.

Rel J. Spiller, vice president and business manager of the Crackers, has a copy of the resolution in his office. It is not at all ambiguous. It quite definitely bears out Martin's contention; gives his ruling ample backing.

VIGOROUS PROTEST.

Yet the Birmingham Barons officials, backed by the heads of five other clubs, have raised a vigorous protest. Further action will be necessitated by that protest. It is possible that a conference will have to be called. It is possible, though not probable, in view of the strong support available for Martin's ruling, that Polvogt will be declared an "A" player. There seems to be but one interpretation which may be placed on the resolution consulted by Martin, however.

GOOD PROSPECT.

Williams who has spent two and a half years in the Sally league and looked good all the time, is rated a good prospect. He spent time with both Knoxville and Greenville, being with the Spinners through the first half of last season. Midway of the grind he and club officials reached an impasse; Williams quit the club. He was reinstated during the off season, however, and signed by the Hartford club of the Eastern league. Thursday Hartford made him a free agent when no salary agreement could be reached. Should negotiations with Williams be successful, he will be brought here and given a tour. Word from the Spinners indicates that he is capable of holding his own in the Southern association. If that be true, Johnny Dobbs will be able to satisfy his desire of carrying one "A" and one "B" catcher. It is probable that Chick Autry will be the "A" catcher.

Smithies Defeat Emory Track Team

Emory University's freshman track team lost to Tech High in the first meet of the year. The score of 74-48, yesterday on the Emory field.

Both teams took 7 of the 14 first places, but the bulk of the second and third places, falling to Tech High, decided the meet.

The half-mile relay, won by Tech HI in 1 minute 35 and 9-10 seconds, and the 220-yard low hurdles, won by Turman, of Emory, in 2:29, were extremely fast for the condition of the track.

Hagen Will Give Golf Exhibition

Walter Hagen, winner of a bagful of major golf championships and one of the most interesting figures in the game today, has agreed to give an exhibition of driving golf balls at Spiller field today before the final Cracker-Yankee game. R. J. Spiller announced last night. An effort is being made to persuade Joe Kirkwood, Australian trick shot wizard, to team with Hagen in the exhibition. Joe is in Macon and will join Hagen here today.

Hagen had dinner with Rube Marquard last night. The Haig insisted that Rube, not he, would give the driving exhibition.

MAWWIN
By Ed Danforth

The Crackers have licked the Yankees twice and the Athletics once in spring games. But the ordinary Baltimore Orioles took the home club for a ride. The poorer the opposition the worse our club plays. What WILL they do against mere Southern league opposition? Help! Help!!

Every now and then the smart young man who tells everybody what the batter is going to do next or the pitcher is going to throw gets away with something.

John (Blondy) Ryan, our boyish shortstop, came to the plate against the Yankees and the smart young man said to the young lady visitor from Macon who was sitting beside him:

"This is John Ryan, the young shortstop sent down here from the White Sox. He is a great hitter; he is liable to put this next pitch into the left field stands."

And Blondy did it—ker-blam!

The next time Blondy came to the plate the smart young man sagely remarked:

"This is Ryan again, the boy who hit the homer a few minutes ago. He is likely to do it again."

And Blondy did.

So the smart young man who is smarter than most of his ilk, found reason to excuse himself and depart, leaving the field with a guessing percentage of 1,000 and a warm admiration for Blondy Ryan.

HOW IT'S DONE.

Two home runs on successive trips to the plate off a New York Yankee pitcher—wise young Ryan! Thus are popular heroes made. Do your heroics early. Fans will remember home runs hit in April and May long after the July slump has set in.

YOU MIGHT HAVE GUESSED IT.

Bleacherite sends in a clipping from one of the papers showing a picture of Miss Mitchell pitching right-handed and asks to be straightened out.

The young lady is a southpaw.

OUCH!

This department blundered—and who hasn't?—into a hornet's nest when it made a belittling remark about the lady pitcher up at Chattanooga.

Wonder was expressed politely as to whether Babe Ruth struck out due to Miss Mitchell's bewildering delivery or his own sense of chivalry.

A note in a round schoolgirl hand from Decatur says: "I ask you 'is that nice?' And women have the name of being caty."

Once upon a time this department made slighting remarks about Rudy Vallee and stirred up a storm of razz-berries. The cure now is complete.

STRIB'S QUICK THINKING.

W. L. Stribling II and Mrs. Stribling, together with Mrs. Foy Boone and Mrs. W. O. Kinney, of Macon, attended the festivities at Spiller field and were guests of the management in a box back of the Cracker dugout. They were joined by Walter Hagen, the golfer, and his small son.

Hagen was keen to hear the details of Strib's recent crash and got a first-hand account of the mishap.

It seems that when Strib's engine was drowned out in the rainstorm he had the option of making an easy landing in a plowed field or a fast landing in the rolling pasture. He chose the latter course because in plowed ground the plane would have nosed in and turned over with the probability of fatal consequences to the passengers. Which was fast thinking in a pinch.

THE POOR THINGS.

That story in this column about the Kentucky matron who fearing a bank failure drew the family funds out and deposited it in a branch of the same bank—and lost all—reminded a correspondent of another such tale. Here it is:

"Operative Number 3X4Y5Z6, on a slumming tour yesterday, picked up Chapter 2 of our latest history: 'Woman, Bank Failure, and Bread Lines.'"

It seems that one of the younger generation, talking things over with the mater, remarked that, being a woman, the best thing for our heroine of Chapter 1 to have done would have been to salt them rocks in an old stocking until hubby came home.

"He answered with a tale which eclipses the original one. A young housewife in Massachusetts met with the same condition, viz: money in bank, bank near about to fail, hubby out of town, what to do. She closed out the account and took the money home, storing it in a pillow case pending the return of the head of the house."

"In due time, hubby did return, wearing a long face. He brightened perceptibly on hearing the glad tidings, however."

"And in due time the pair reached the family mansion. Wife, the darling savior of the family fortunes, went upstairs to bring the dollars out for inspection."

"And darned if she hadn't sent the pillow case to the laundry!"

Life No Bed of Roses For Babe; Is Busy Man

Despite Miserable Feeling, Ruth Responds to Whims of All Who Seek Him Out.

By Ralph McGill.

BABE RUTH came tramping across the diamond at Spiller field early Friday afternoon with a look of resignation on his well-known features.

The big fellow was interrupted three times as he crossed the diamond by inquisitive baseball reporters. He made the bench and sat down with a sigh.

HE SWUNG one leg across the other and gazed pensively across the field. There was a look of misery in his face.

"I've got a 'misery' in my back and my neck is stiff," he said, with a grimace.

"Say, Babe," said Joe McCarthy, "did that fellow get you on the telephone?"

"Yeah," said the Babe. "Say, Joe, you know what that fellow wanted? He wanted me to drive 90 miles out here to some town. Say, Joe, you know I can't. I told him the ball club was passing the buck."

"Mr. Ruth," said a kid in overalls,

JACKETS DROP SECOND, 4 TO 3, TO GAMECOCKS

Harper and Baker Hit Homers; Georgia Beats Florida.

By Roy White.

Playing alert ball and taking advantage of every opportunity to score, South Carolina defeated Georgia Tech, 4 to 3, Friday afternoon on the Rose Bowl diamond for the second straight in the three-game series. The final game will be played at 3 o'clock this afternoon and will be the last before Tech opens its Dixie College baseball schedule next week.

Tech played a much better game than Thursday when the Gamecocks won a 11-10 decision. The Jackets fought back hard and outhit the Gamecocks for the second successive time, but failed to make the hits count when men were in scoring positions.

TWO HOME RUNS. Two of the Jacket runs were made when Harper and Baker hit for the circuit in the third and fourth innings, respectively. The other run came in the ninth inning when Dawson batted for Drennon and tripled to the centerfield fence. Baker sent Dawson home with a long fly to Boone in center field.

There was a decided improvement in the fielding of the Jackets as only two errors were made and they came on hard tries in the infield.

Cannonball Fred Baker opposed South Carolina and pitched a creditable game. He allowed a total of six hits, no two of which came in the same inning. He hit two batters and one of those counted a run on Laval's pinch single in the fifth inning.

South Carolina started the scoring in the second inning. Laval doubled, went to third on an infield out and scored when Drennon juggled Sikes' hard hit grounder. Sikes scored a moment later on an overthrow. Another run was added in the fourth on an error, a fielder's choice and Hicks' triple.

COOL, STEADY BALL. Cuts pitched a cool, steady game for the visitors and only in the eighth inning did the Jackets secure more than one hit, but they came after two were out and did no damage. He pitched particularly good ball in the pinches and had excellent control after the first inning, when he pulled himself out of a hole with the bases empty.

Laval was the shining light in the South Carolina victory. His double started the scoring in the second inning and his pinch single in the fifth scored what proved to be the winning run. He fielded his position well and handled four difficult chances.

Harper was the hitting star for the Jackets with a home run and a single. Baker deserves praise for his pitching, a home run and five assists.

Batted for Drennon in sixth. South Carolina.....020 110 000-3 Summary: Runs batted in, Harper, Baker 2; Hicks, Laval; two-base hits, Laval, Jimmy Johnston; Madison Square's new promotional rival.

Working together, the milk fund committee and Johnston hope to promote a bout between Jack Sharkey and either Mickey Walker, or Primo Carnera in July. Johnston has signed Sharkey to fight for him three times this summer at Ebbets field.

The only thing in the way of such a match is the fact that both Walker and Carnera are under suspension by the New York boxing commission. Walker for failure to defend his middleweight crown and Carnera for his recent fiasco hitting Tony. It is understood the commission is willing to forgive and forget in Walker's case, however, providing Mickey will forsake his title before taking on Sharkey.

Walker is eager for a shot at the Boston Gob, but Sharkey has not been noticeably enthusiastic at the prospect of meeting the toy bulldog. Sharkey has everything to lose in such a bout, his friends say, and very little to gain.

Wake Forest Bows To Penny, 4 to 1

WAKE FOREST, N. C. April 3. (AP)—A scintillating band of ball players came down from Pennsylvania today and gave the Wake Forest nine a 4-to-1 lacing. Masters, University of Pennsylvania hurler, held the Demon Deacons to four hits.

THE FIRST BALL. President John J. Tigert, of the University of Florida, tossed out the first ball of the game while one of the Florida players tossed the ball.

It was a jam-up, interesting game. Florida fielded flawlessly and gave every evidence of a strong entry in the Dixie league. Captain Ben Clemmons yielded but five hits, enough to win the orange game, and hurled a most creditable debut.

SITE SELECTING IS SET APRIL 15

Chicago Garden Head To Set Strib-Max Battlefield.

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—William F. Carey, president of the Madison Square Corporation, announced tonight that final disposition of the proposed heavyweight match between Max Schmeling and Young Stribling would be made by Sheldon Clark, his Chicago associate on April 15.

At that time, Carey said, Sheldon will name a definite site for the battle. "It was understood," he said, "that the best chance of landing the bout, since Chicago virtually had been eliminated as a contender."

Although no formal announcement has been made, it was understood that the Hearst Milk Fund, which decided early in the week to have nothing more to do with the Schmeling-Stribling affair, has aligned itself with Jimmy Johnston, Madison Square's new promotional rival.

BIG BAM FAILS AT PLATE; RYAN HITSHOMERUNS

Morrison and Gregory Hurl Good Ball for Second Victory.

By Ralph McGill.

Matching toe hold for toe hold up there at the plate, the Atlanta Crackers outhit the New York Yankees Friday afternoon at Spiller field to defeat the Yanks for the second time this spring, the score being 8 to 4.

Were it not for the fact that the double A club have been administering sound beating to John Dobbs' Crackers this spring they might be claiming the American league pennant. The Crackers have defeated the Yankees twice, 1 to 0 and 8 to 4. The Athletics were softened up, 5 to 2.

There is no use searching the home run column in the box score of Friday's game for the name of George H. (Babe) Ruth. It is not there. The lone occupant of the home run suite is John (Blondy) Ryan, the kid recruit from the White Sox.

TWO HOME RUNS. He blasted two of them right into the republican grandstand in left field to the great delight of the colored fans. There was a mate on the paths each time Blondy Ryan hoisted the ball into the stands. Which made the merriest of the fans much noisier.

Poco Taft, the Idaho Potato Masher, was extremely busy in the early innings when the Crackers were pounding the offerings of Ivy Andrews, the ex-Mobile pitcher. Poco Taft mashed the potato, as they say, for a double with two on and for a triple with the bases empty. He counted both times.

Ivy Andrews worked three innings. One of them was scoreless. The other two saw him raked for seven runs. And the three innings saw seven hits made, four of them for extra bases. Seven of them for a total base mark of 16. Like as not for Ivy Andrews was wishing he was back in Mobile.

JUST FIVE HITS. The Yankees got but five hits. Ben Chapman, the lad who almost caused the Yankees to have their baseball bloomers and hats attached at Birmingham, got two of them, both doubles. Earl Combs got a double. Lyn Lary and Tony Lazzeri got singles. That was all.

Babe Ruth went hitless while Jughandle Johnny Morrison, the veteran, and Paul Gregory, the rah, rah product, pitched baseball. Morrison gave up three hits in five innings. He was a bit wild.

THOUGHT IT MARCH. Paul Gregory thought it was March. He was wild as a March hare. But how he did bear down in the pinches. In the eighth, with three on, he caused Pinch Hitter Hoag to pop meekly to Jack Sheehan at second.

He walked five men but he struck out four. Both Crackers pitched great ball. A little wild in the early innings, but they were in the game. Especially from the Cracker staff. It hasn't had enough work.

In justice to Babe Ruth it should be said that the big fellow is suffering from various ailments. Each spring finds him with some new misery. He has a stiff neck and a painful leg injury. Yet he gets out there and plays the game. He is still the big game attraction. If the Yankees will not feel hurt they may as well know that the 2,500 people who turned out for the game would have been reduced to about 500 had not the big fellow been in there.

BARE UP FIVE TIMES. Ruth was up five times. He struck out once when Morrison was pitching. He walked the next time and went out. Morrison to Ryan to Shirley, on his third try. Sheehan threw on out. First time out against Gregory and Autry took a weak one in front of the plate and tossed him out to end the game in the ninth.

In practice the big fellow hit one far over the green fence in right field. "Is it a home run or not?" little "Babe" asked your correspondent before he went up. And over it went. In the game the pitcher were trying their best. He never gets anything in fact to him. Even in the exhibition games the pitchers bear down when the big fellow is up.

The fans were clamoring for him to hit. They were shouting "Babe, hit it!" today when the two teams met.

Gar Wood Prepares for Dash To Regain Record

SPEED VETERAN OFF FOR MIAMI; SEES NEW MARK

Detroit Confident Miss America IX Can Better Don's Record.

By Foster Hailey,

Associated Press Sports Writer.
NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—Gar Wood, who has twice regained the United States world's speed record, today buckled on his racing armor to repel the latest thrust of the British lion, now king of speed on sea and land and in the air.

Confronted by the new world's speedboat mark of 103.49 miles an hour, set yesterday at Buenos Aires by Kaye Don, Wood left tonight for Miami Beach, where his Miss America IX waits the master's hand on the throttle.

Only 13 days ago, on March 21, Wood drove his broad-beamed racing craft over the placid waters of Indian creek at 102.56 miles an hour, breaking the record of Sir Henry O. D. Segrave by a little over three miles an hour. Now he must try to again.

The white-haired Detroit manufacturer, who has been building and racing boats longer than he cares to remember, would not say what speed he believes this big boat is capable of, but he indicated his belief that he can beat Don's mark.

"We didn't run our fastest mile," he said in commenting on his previous record-breaking trials, "and I believe with a few refinements of hull and engine the old girl can step out a bit faster."

"The boys are working on her right now. I'll be there Sunday and we'll see how things go. No, I wouldn't want to say what speed I hope to make. We'll run our trials and let the timers do the talking."

American motor manufacturers must give him some aid, Wood believes, if he is to regain and retain the speedboat record.

"There is no question that they are building the finest motors on the other side," Wood said. "I understand they are making a 2,500 horsepower motor that will weigh but 1,600 pounds. My motors, the best made on this side of the water, weigh 1,900 pounds and develop only 1,600 horsepower. Don's weigh the same and develop almost twice as much—2,000 horsepower. We've got the edge on them in boat design and efficiency of propellers but that is all. If I had Don's motors in my Miss America IX I believe I could get 120 miles an hour."

Wood is looking forward with considerable optimism to the Harmsworth races at Detroit next summer, where, if present plans go through, he and Don will put their speed and the speed of their boats in a match race.

"My Miss America will show to her best advantage there," he said. "She's a lot more maneuverable than Don's boat and I believe she's better on the long six-mile pull."

"Yes, and I think she's faster on a straightaway mile, too," he added, smiling, "but I'll have to prove that."

N. G. I. C. Opening Delayed a Week

Opening games in the North Georgia Intercollegiate Conference basketball league scheduled for Friday afternoon were postponed until next Wednesday afternoon. The formal opening will take place Tuesday afternoon with the regular scheduled second round games.

The postponement was due to the eligibility of several of the players being questioned.

A joint meeting of the league members and the executive committee of the fifth district of the Georgia High School Association will be held at 6 o'clock Monday afternoon at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Rockne's Own Story Tells of Grid Debut And College Life

In this series of 18 articles, of which this is the third, the great Notre Dame football coach, whose untimely death in an airplane accident Tuesday shocked the nation, tells of the adventures and people he met in his eventful course from Voss, in Norway, to the middle western university which he helped to make famous. It is an exciting story—the saga of Knute Rockne. It is his own life story and will appear exclusively in The Constitution daily until it is completed. There will be much written about Rockne. This is Rockne's own story, written by Rockne.

BY KNUTE ROCKNE. INSTALLMENT 3.

NOTRE DAME University, in 1910, when I felt the strangeness of being a lone Norse Protestant—if the word must be used—in a Catholic stronghold, comprised six halls, in one of which, Brownson dormitory, I was installed. There were 400 undergraduates, physical training was compulsory, and a fellow wasn't thought much of unless he went out to try and make his hall team for football.

Shortly Longman, an end on Michigan's famous Point-a-Minute team, was Notre Dame's head coach—the first college coach I ever knew. He was a snappy, belligerent figure who affected a shock of hair after the manner of McCullough, the actor.

The university gave me a chance to work off my beard and room as janitor of the chemical laboratory. Somebody stole a gallon of experimental wine from the pharmacy laboratory; I was blamed, and ran risks of expulsion. So my reputation was not glamorous. When, therefore, Joe Collins, a varsity squad man, recommended me for a chance with the big boys, Longman wasn't enthusiastic.

But he gave me the chance. Freshmen were played in those days, and with a small enrollment we needed them. Longman sent me out with the scrubs in a test game with the regulars. He made me full-back. They should have changed my position to drawback. Never on any football field was there so dismal a flop. Trying to spear my first punt I had frozen fingers and the ball rolled everywhere it wasn't wanted.

Longman kept me in that agonizing game. Finally, I tried a punt. Nothing happened. I might have been a statue of a player trying to punt. Nothing was co-ordinated. I was half paralyzed. A 200-pound tackle smashed into me. My 145 pounds were weighed in for nothing.

LONGMAN yanked me out of the scrubs and sent me back to Brownson Hall. I was a dud, a wash-out, not even good enough for the scrubs.

But the fact remained that I could run, and running was important to a football player. Perhaps, I reasoned, if I tried for a job at end, my old spot on the sandlot and high school teams, I'd have better luck. The first step was to get on the varsity track team, which I did. A track letter gave me the prestige to try once more for the football squad.

FOOT TO MOUTH. In the meantime I had sat at the feet of a learned tramp athlete whose name was Foley, although he had played for many schools under aliases.

He was typical of young men who roamed the country, overflowing with college spirit, regardless of the college. His tongue teemed with professional jargon.

He knew all the technique and practiced none of it; yet so glib was he that it invariably took a shrill coach half a season to get wise to the fact that this tramp athlete had only one principle in football, which he pitifully expressed: "Avoid 'em." He opened my eyes to a state of affairs in college football which has since been reformed—of the journeyman players who'd leave new names behind them wherever they went, and live to a ripe old age, from foot to mouth, so to speak, taking loyalty and sometimes talent with them to whichever Alma Mater would give them the best break.

NOT SO PURE. We played teams whose purity of enrollment was not quite ninety-nine and three-quarters per cent. The Indian schools were careless in that respect, several Indian players changing legal names to Indian names as they switched from one Indian school to another.

The famous back, Emil Hauser of Haskell, became Chief Waseka at Carlisle; another lad I knew named Dietz blossomed into Chief Long Star, and I always called the celebrated back, Pete Hauser, Chief Long Time Eat, when I met him playing for his third or fourth Alma Mater—he shone brightly at training table.

Notre Dame was struggling to establish itself in football in football circles. It was not strong—Ohio Northern, Marquette and Pittsburgh were "big games." Our equipment was poor. In the first game I played in—against Ohio Northern—a guard was so severely injured that we had to use our lone roll of tape. Later his substitute in the line cracked up, so we had to take tape off the first boy to bind up the second.

GREAT SYSTEM. Shortly Longman knew much about football, but he talked much more. Our offense was principally a punt and a prayer—varied with an occasional line plunge.

Longman's method was that of the old-fashioned oratorical coach. Before a game he would enter the dressing room dramatically, toss back his shock of black hair and burst into rhetoric.

"Boys," he declaimed, "today is the day. The honor of the old school is at stake. Now or never, we must fight the battle of our lives. I don't want any man with a streak of yellow to move from this room. You've all got to be heroes—HEROES, or I never want to see you again. Go out and conquer. It's the crisis of your lives!"

REPEAT IS POOR. When I heard that for the first time I was tremendously impressed. The team went out and all put pushed the opposing team—Olivet—over the fence. The next Saturday, as we lay resting in the dressing room, Coach Longman entered.

"Boys," he declaimed, "today is the day of days. The honor of the old school is at stake. The eyes of the world are on you. Go out and bleed for the old school, and if anybody has a yellow streak let him—"

I sat there awe-stricken. Then I saw Dorais and Bergman, two veterans, yawn.

"What do you think of the act today?" asked Bergman. "I don't want any man with a streak of yellow to move from this room. You've all got to be heroes—HEROES, or I never want to see you again. Go out and conquer. It's the crisis of your lives!"

ONCE IS ENOUGH. One season a season is quite enough for any football squad. Action brings reaction, and if the coach talks too much, his words lose weight.

Our next coach was Jack Marks, the Dartmouth back. He made us over from a green, aggressive squad into a slashing, driving outfit. The first time that he looked over Eichenlaub, the largest college baseball audiences in vogue looked on.

Florida got busy in the first frame. Guluzian hit briskly into right and took second as McGaughey fumbled Roberts' boulder directly over second base. Bradley shoved Guluzian and Roberts along a base with a neat sacrifice, but Chandler fanned Pittman.

With two away and the count on him two and three, lanky Paul Brown, Florida right fielder, lined a single into the pasture to score.

Georgia knotted the score in the third. Hardin singled through short and swiped second. Tate hoisted to Guluzian and Chandler took first when Clemmons dusted him with one too close inside. A booming double over the left fielder's head by little Aussie Downes sent in two runs.

The winning tally came in the seventh. Gaston shot a one-timer to left, was sacrificed to second by Hardin and came home when Tate dropped a Texas leaguer into center.

Florida had a glorious chance to tie the count in the ninth when Pittman lived first on Downes' fumble of his roller. Brown lined out to center field, but Chandler uncorked a wild pitch and Pittman galloped to third. As Mizelle fanned on a wide pitch-out ball trying to squeeze Pittman in, the latter was trapped at the plate.

Pittman and Guluzian starred afield for Florida while Brown's timely punch sent in both Gator runs. Downes and Tate contributed the telltale blows for the Bulldogs.

Coaches To Place Token of Esteem On Rockne Bier

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 3.—(AP) A testimonial from his former colleagues in the American Association of College Football Coaches will accompany Knute Rockne to his final resting place tomorrow.

The memorial has been prepared and was described today by Coach John F. Meehan, of New York University, upon his arrival in South Bend, to attend the funeral.

It is a bronze tube, seven or eight inches in length, bearing a silver plate upon which has been engraved Rockne's name, date of birth and death, and some of the high spots of his career.

Within the tube has been sealed a parchment upon which is engraved tributes from the members of the coaches' association.

had as you do?" asked a newspaperman. "Oh, yeah," said the Babe. "I'll be out there."

There is something appealing about the big fellow. He remains one of the finest figures in sport today, one who is himself all the time.

He started facing his shoes again. "Mr. Ruth," said a man who was advancing timidly. He held a half dozen baseball in his hands. "If you will be so kind as to autograph these."

"Sure, sure," said the Babe. "Give me a fountain pen. I haven't got much time."

"Thanks, thanks, a whole lot," said the man.

THE PHOTOGRAPHERS. "Mr. Ruth?" a photographer queried. "We want you to pose with Walter Hagen. Right over here. That's right. Now be talking to each other. Fine."

"Say, Babe," said one of the Yankees, "there was a call for you."

"Yeah, I got it," he said. "Gee, I feel tough."

"Oh, Mr. Ruth. There is an old friend of yours in the stands. He asks if you'll stop that for the dugout."

"Say, Babe, will you pose with Hagen again?"

"Why, I just did that."

"I know, but I wasn't here and I want that shot. Right over here. Now be talking to each other. Fine."

Van Ryn Team in New Orleans Finals.

NEW ORLEANS, April 3.—(AP)—Clifford Sutter, New Orleans, and Ellsworth Wines, Pasadena, Cal., upset all advance calculations today by defeating the veteran George Lott and John Van Ryn of Philadelphia, in the doubles finals of the New Orleans Country Club invitation tennis tournament.

The score was 6-3, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3.

In the morning semi-finals play, Lott and Van Ryn had been extended to beat John Barr and James Quick of Dallas, Texas, in a five-set match, 6-1, 6-5, 5-7, 6-3, 6-3. Sutter and Wines defeated Dan Murray and Maurice Bayon, New Orleans players, in the other semi-finals without a break in straight sets, 8-6, 6-3, 6-1.

again hoping to see him bust one, as they say, even if it costs the Crackers the game.

YANKS HUSTLING. Joe McCarthy, a most pleasant gentleman, had his club hustling to win. He shifted his lineup a bit, sending Chapman to second instead of third and putting Lutzer at the keyhole. Chapman hit a couple down there that did not seem damage but did not help out at all.

Joe Sewell, the rejuvenated infielder cast pinch hit for Lutzer, appeared as a pinch hitter and got a base on balls. He is in great shape.

The Crackers leaped right into Ivy Andrews in the first inning. Barnes struck out but Sheehan and Barron singled. Tait scored them both with a double and moved on to third on Shirley's infield out. Then came the home run into the republican sector. Ryan trotted home behind Tait for the fourth tally.

CRACKERS START.

Andrews gave up just one hit in the second but in the third the Crackers started again. With Barzon an outfield out, Tait tripled and scored when Gehrig dropped a throw at first on an infield play to get Shirley. Up came Ryan for his second try and the subsequent home run into the left field stands.

There was no more Cracker scoring until the eighth. Slim Weaver, who succeeded Ivy Andrews, struck a big No. 11 shoe and a curve ball in the faces of the Cracker hitters and four innings stopped them. A young fellow named Allen was pitching in the eighth and he was wild. He walked Amos Martin and Andy Martin scored on Chick Autry's double.

The two teams met again today. Johnny Dobbs will select his pitchers from a trio men up of Ray Francis, Bunny Hearn and Andy Messenger. The latter is a right-hander. The starting time will be 2:30 o'clock.

"We're playing Wabash this afternoon," Eichenlaub said. "We're playing Wabash this afternoon," Eichenlaub said. "We're playing Wabash this afternoon," Eichenlaub said.

HARD ON FOES. Marks was always a quiet mentor; but he liked to pile up scores. Once we led Adrian by 51 to 0, and the Adrian coach said he'd used up all his substitutes and we agreed to let him send men back who had already played. Marks argued. He returned to the sidelines. Some time later he saw a strange player on our bench.

"You're on the wrong bench," he said.

"I know it," said the lad. "I've been in that scrap four times already, and they're not going to send me back if I can help it."

Marks laughed quietly, and let the lad remain. Again, during a game with Butler, a big halfback named Meyers, strong but shy, was missing.

"You've only got ten men on the field," the umpire cried to the Notre Dame coach. Marks looked over the field in anger.

"Where in heck is Meyers?" he demanded.

"Here I am, coach," sang Meyers from his blanket. "I got bumped right on my knee."

Marks smiled quietly, said nothing. But Meyers played no more. That was his method. The team stepped

AS CIRRHOSIS CAUSE

Noted Pathologist Says Injury to Liver Caused by Impurity.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 3.—(AP) After keeping hogs drunk for 15 years and observing experiments for 35 years, Dr. F. R. Mallory, of the Boston city hospital, has failed to find that ethyl alcohol itself does injury to the liver.

Injury known as alcoholic cirrhosis is probably caused by some impurity in the alcohol, Dr. Mallory told members of the American Association of Pathologists and Bacteriologists in the closing session of their annual convention here today.

"I have kept hogs drunk for fifteen years in an effort to find out what impurities in alcohol cause cirrhosis, but so far have not succeeded," Dr. Mallory said. "I am certain, however, that pure alcohol has no deleterious effect on the liver."

He said he believed liver trouble had increased since prohibition because of the practice of manufacturing moonshine whiskey in copper stills. Copper, he said, is a deadly poison to the liver.

Cells of cancer, in their ravages on the human body, bear a resemblance to the cells of the liver, he said, when young but learn no new ones in old age.

They are also like parsnips which grow tough as they grow older.

But it is revealed that a study of 1,500 cancers in autopsies by Dr. Shields Warren, instructor in pathology at the Harvard University Medical School, upon which the association at the closing session of the association.

He said it had been established that the "more mature type" cancer was the one that was most common, the bombardment of X-rays, he said it was more practical to deal with these surgically.

"You're Rockne?" its owner asked.

"Well," he went on, after having introduced himself as Jess Harper, Notre Dame's new coach, "I'm grabbing you football men off as fast as I can. We've got to work our heads and legs off."

"What's the excitement?" I said, trying to be calm.

"They're letting us play in the east," he exclaimed. "The Army has agreed to play Notre Dame."

Tomorrow Rockne describes his "Big League Debut" and tells of the coming of the forward pass into vogue.

Atlanta Youths Are With Marines In 'Quake Sector

Two Atlanta youths are believed to have been in Nicaragua when the earthquake rocked Managua, stationed there with the marine corps, but parents were of the opinion that they had escaped injury.

They are Clyde A. Babb, 417 Cherokee avenue, S. E., and Buster Cox, of 625 B. B. street.

According to relatives neither of the two have been heard from for about 30 days, but that when last they were heard of, they were stationed in a telephone building which they understood was destroyed by the quake.

G. G. Babb, father of Clyde A. Babb, stated Friday night that he was of the opinion that his son had escaped any injury as he had not received any word to the contrary.

Injury to the marine recruiting station occurred with him in this belief, as they pointed out, it is the required regulation that in the event a man is injured that his people should be notified at the office.

Five negro youths Friday afternoon were bound over to the grand jury on charges of burglary, after a hearing in court before Recorder A. S. Callaway. Their bonds were set at $1,000 each.

The five, all of whom were arrested by Detective J. J. Chester and P. H. Jones, were arraigned in two groups and held in connection with two different burglaries. E. J. Woodward, Melvin Butler and Harrison Hudson were bound over for alleged participation in the burglary of the Stewart Hotel, which occurred on the night of March 20, and G. Mitchell and Thomas Mosley were ordered bound over for alleged complicity in the burglary of the L. B. Price Mercantile Company at 104 Edgewood avenue on the night of March 27.
